Changeable Blades on AP's EZ4 Spinner

An interchangeable blade spinner with a sonic vibrator, the EZ4 introduced by AP's Goldfish Lures includes four blades to meet varying water conditions.

The vibrator is engineered to attract fish. Whirling in the turbulence created by the revolving blade, it throws out sonic waves which modern research indicates have a strong attraction for fish.

An EZ4 clevis makes blade-changing easy even in cold weather. A feathered treble is optional.

The EZ4 outfit comes packaged in a window-topped box for visual sales appeal. It weighs ¼ ounce and is priced at $1.10 or $1.25, depending on color combinations. AP's Goldfish Lure Co.

THE SPORTING GOODS DEALER for FEBRUARY, 1957

Colt's new, selective distribution policy will make its "Registered" dealerships the most valuable in the firearms industry

New Colt management offers handgun dealers greatest opportunity ever. Effective February 1, Colt's will sell only through selected registered dealers. And every qualifying dealer will be backed to the hilt with all the tremendous new force at Colt's command. This break with tradition . . . this naming of the dealer as the key man in the Colt picture . . . is the result of a nationwide survey to pinpoint dealer wants in the handgun field. It is further evidence of Colt's determination to make the most famous name in handguns even more famous.

New Colt distribution policy will assure dealers bigger profits. Registered Colt dealers will automatically receive longer discounts than before and, therefore, a wider profit margin. Planned merchandising and promotion will rekindle the interest of former customers in Colt's and stimulate the interest of new prospects. And every effort will be augmented by the personal services of Colt district salesmen. They will help dealers with their individual merchandising problems and train their personnel. Although the prime goal will be a faster turnover of Colt handguns, the net result will be greater store traffic and increased sales of all lines of merchandise.

New Colt merchandising package will make selling easier. Starting with exciting, eye-appealing packaging, the registered Colt dealer will get everything he needs to sell handguns: door, window, wall and counter identification, attractive displays, a beautifully illustrated guide to the whole Colt line, handout literature, envelope stuffers, newspaper mats, etc. Colt's famous exhibition shooter will be available for bookings in dealer stores.

New, improved manufacture will make Colt quality even more famous. Skillful new engineering brains and modern, streamlined production facilities will assure Colt dealers of quality even surpassing that for which Colt's has been famous since 1836.

New, exciting Colt models will stimulate tremendous consumer demand. Many of these guns are already in the works. When they are in stock and ready for immediate shipment, their availability will be announced. The registered Colt dealer will be able to count on a superb handgun for every purpose.

New advertising program will give the dealer full support. Paving the way for his own sales efforts, the registered Colt dealer will have the most powerful publication advertising support ever scheduled for handguns. Full page ads, directed to target shooters, plinkers, outdoorsmen, and law enforcement agencies, will appear on a regular basis in leading national magazines.

JOTTINGS About the JOBBERS

in rural areas and communities of less than 25,000 population as his best customers.

Distribution of the company's catalog is widespread, as many who have felt the barb of Kritzik's competition can attest.

Kritzik's first mail order catalog was an eight-page affair. The book comes out twice a year now and the fall edition totals 700 pages. He is said to be Milwaukee's largest user of parcel post and express.

His only helper at the start was Mrs. Kritzik. Now he has 800 full-time employees. At Christmas time there were 2,500 on his payroll.

Can't give his name here, but there's a tackle jobber in the Midwest who had this to say about the American sporting goods jobber's future, when The DEALER asked him for a list of 50 retailers to verify his declared status as a sporting goods jobber:

"Glad someone is making an effort to protect the many fine legitimate jobbers in the country. The retail outlets and discount houses who buy at jobbers' prices are rapidly making a joke of the tackle business.

"Personally, I'm afraid to do any buying. There isn't a souvenir stand, filling station or store of any kind in our territory around here that doesn't get several catalogs from discount houses. The factories pretend to be interested but they really do nothing about it.

"One of my best retail accounts bought out a jobber and the factories, or some of them, continue to sell the firm at jobbers' prices, giving that store a 25 per cent advantage over every other one around here. It's an advantage as a jobber, too, for if he makes a bad buy, all he has to do is cut it down to cost and get rid of it in the retail store, while jobbers like me have to eat it practically.

"Another big store in our town has seen this deal and the owner says he is going to do the same thing.

"We have been in the tackle business ten years and I have never sold a dime's worth of merchandise retail. Hope you have the answer."

Ed. Kruger, who has been selling and trading guns all his life, has grown into the jobbing business with his firm, The Trading Post, Tribes Hill, N. Y., he announced January 1.

Compac Spin Reel in Die-Cast Housing

The basic housing of the new "volume priced" Compac Capri spinning reel is die-cast aluminum finished with pearl gray baked enamel.

Other features include a heavily chrome plated full ball pickup with a hardened line roller, positive anti-reverse switch located for finger tip operation, full race ball bearing mounted spinner cup and virtually frictionless worm gearing.

The handle folds, allowing compact storage of the reel. One-screw take apart is easy to achieve for lubrication and maintenance. The drag has a wide adjustment range.

A 4.65 to one gear ratio allows fast retrieve. The Capri weighs ten ounces and its spool holds 225 yards of eight-pound test monofilament line. Commerce Pacific, Inc.

Allan Roller Guides of Stainless Steel

New Allan roller guides for wear and abuse are made of 302 stainless steel, which means no rust, corrosion or deterioration.

The specially hardened stainless steel line roller revolves freely and easily on an Oilite bearing, offering negligible friction and line wear. The bearing is extremely close fitting on the sides so the line cannot slide in. Allan Mfg. Co.

Evinrude Dreams Up Sailing Saucer

This futuristic saucer-shaped outboard boat, custom-made by Evinrude Motors at a reported cost of $14,000, caused much comment at the National Motor Boat Show in New York City. Shown at the simulated electronic controls is W. J. Webb of Evinrude while Brooks Stevens, the designer, explains how the craft would be guided by throttle handles and levers turning the two motors. Another suggested feature of this "adventure in design and development" is a television screen to scan for fish. Evinrude said it is not necessarily advocating the saucer design, but suggesting that the boat industry should not be bound by tradition.

nessean, with Vice-President Amon C. Evans as director, assisted by Bob Steber, outdoor editor; Jim White-shield, boating editor, and Bill Maples, promotion manager, the show will be reserved for boating, rod and gun club members the final Monday, with exhibits open from 9 a. m. to noon.

The event will be held in the Coliseum of the State Fairgrounds. Features will include a state casting tournament, Red Cross water safety show, coon hunt, outdoor clothing style show, trout fishing and log rolling.

PHILADELPHIA

AN ESTIMATED $3,000,000 worth of equipment for the outdoor sports and boating will be spotlighted in the city's famous Convention Hall during the twenty-second annual Philadelphia Motor Boat & Sportsmen's Show, March 1 to 9.

George R. Smith, Jr., president of the show organization, and Clinton W. Smullen, secretary, characterize the coming event as "the greatest since the inaugural in 1935."

The displays, covering everything from a 42-foot cruiser to tackle and firearms, will transform the big building into a sportsman's paradise.

One of the headline events of the show will be the annual casting tournament sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Association of Casting Clubs.

WINTER SPORTS

NOW expanded to include the annual but heretofore separate Canadian Winter Sports Exposition, the National Winter Sports Show this spring will present the products of 29 prominent Dominion manufacturers in addition to those of 60 or more U. S. firms.

The show will be held in the Hotel Sheraton-McAlpin, New York City, May 12 to 15, under the direction of J. Andrew Squires.

The event will place on display a complete round-up of equipment and apparel for all of the winter sports, from curling to skiing.

Information is available from Squires at 23 East 26th street, New York 10, N. Y.

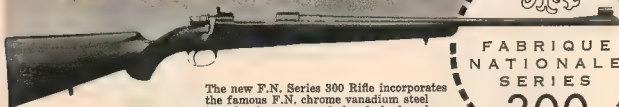

TOYS

MORE than 16,000 buyers and 1,800 manufacturers are expected to be present at the 54th annual American Toy Fair in New York City, March 6 to 15.

Monospool

Prevents line from sliding between spool and reel frame

It's mighty important for a fisherman to have his spool fit snugly against the frame of his reel. Lawrence Monospool reels eliminate the danger of line riding over the spool and catching—especially thin monofilament line. That's why the new Monospools on all Lawrence salt and most fresh water reels, are so popular with fishermen. It's the spool that keeps the line where it's supposed to be—on the spool.

Lightning 400

Other features are its handsome appearance, its positive anti-reverse, precision controlled drag, extra-hard longtime service line guide, self-lubricating bronze bearings, and cross-winding action. Here's a reel that will provide years of trouble-free service... years of pleasure.

Thompson Stresses Sealap Construction

The Thompson lap-strake boats for 1957 incorporate Sealap, a safety-lap construction which consists of brass-bolting every plank from stem to stern with a rubber sealing-mastic forming a watertight bond between the planks.

In addition to sturdy, seaworthy construction, Thompson also has kept style in mind for its 1957 models. Some of them have such pastel shades as ice blue and sea green, imparting a delicate appeal along with the sturdiness of the boats' construction.

The Thompson lap-chine boats have smooth marine plywood sides and bottoms, applied in sheets; at the chins (the point at which the sides bend under to form the bottom) marine plywood is lapped to form a sturdy, well-rounded safety-lap.

There are three basic lap-strake hulls—the 14-foot Sea Skiff, 16-foot Sea Coaster and 18-foot Off-shore Fisherman De Luxe. A catalog is available. Thompson Bros. Boat Mfg. Co.

Kimball's Widest Line of Water Skis

The Kimball fiber glass water ski collection for 1957 has been expanded to meet a wide variety of tastes, budgets and levels of accomplishment.

Bright plaid, check and stripe patterns, and a solid white have been added. The company's unique Dihedral wood skis, now introduced in slalom as well as standard models, have acquired an all-new low-priced companion in Dolphin wood skis introduced by Kimball.

Other features include Kimball automatic adjustable bindings with the smooth-action, springless fingertip trigger.

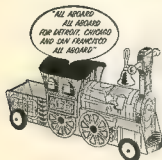

New designs available in fiber glass pattern skis are a red plaid, a yellow-and-white check, and a red-and-white Catalina stripe. Fashion-wise white, to complement all swimwear, has joined red and yellow in the solid colors.

Patterns and colors are permanently fused. Kimball Mfg. Co.

No. 584-Toy Electric Vibraphone

Knaickerbocker introduces a "shining star" in the realm of "famous fires" in presenting the Sensational Electric Toy Vibraphone. Master craftsmen have captured the rich pulsating musical voice of the concert vibraphone heard daily on radio and TV and have created a junior model for children. The battery-operated, motor-driven vibrator mechanism produces ethereal music with a tonal richness heard in no other musical toy and the pure tones of the "special formula" aluminum-alloy keyboard are enhanced through the use of scientifically tuned "tone chambers". Its resonator case is a rich blend of color styrene which accentuates the silvery sparkle of the keyboard. The new Electric Toy Vibraphone is actually four instruments in one:

1. Vibraphone
2. Marimba
3. Xylophone
4. Orchestra Bells

Accessories include an artistic music rack, a pair of suitable mallets, and a deluxe music book featuring 16 musical solos of popular music, classics, nursery tunes, folk music, sacred, and Christmas selections. The Vibraphone is attractively packaged for feature display—a sparkle of sales freshness for window or counter.

CP "POWER VANE" ROTARY COMPRESSORS

▼ offer 3 design "extras" that assure BETTER SERVICE

▼ TAPERED ROLLER BEARINGS

Centering of rotors maintained between head plates; axial movement restrained

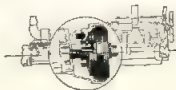

▼ FITTED-STEP CONSTRUCTION

Metal-to-metal joining of all housing and fitted-step construction of mating surfaces insure perfect running alignment.

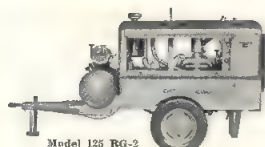

▼ PRESSURE-MATIC (Safety Friction) DRIVE

Transmits full engine power . . . its flexibility protects compressor and engine by automatically absorbing shock.

- Chicago Pneumatic Rotaries are now available in sizes of 125, 210, 365, 600 and 900 c.f.m.
- Without pistons, connecting rods, valves or other reciprocating parts to maintain, these two-stage, oil-cooled rotaries afford thousands of hours of trouble-free service. Their oil injection system provides copious lubrication, cools the air during compression and assures long rotor blade life, yet oil consumption is remarkably low and air delivered is practically oil free. Due to oil injection, discharge air is 100° lower than in equivalent piston-type compressors.
- These "POWER VANES" weigh less than piston-type machines of half the capacity and—they take 30% less space than equivalent piston-type compressors.

Catalin

STYRENE AND POLYETHYLENE

... make things tough for children!

And at the Toy Show... that's good!

Love children tenderly . . . they need and deserve it. But when it comes to toys, give them articles that will not only handsomely entertain them but also stand up ruggedly under the brutal yanking and hanging of young exploratory hands.

For staunch strength in rigid toys and parts, CATALIN STYRENE is play-sturdy. In bendable toys and parts, CATALIN POLYETHYLENE . . . limber but sinewy . . . is play-practical. Both Catalin plastics, in a wide range of happy colors, are play-pretty.

This spread illustrates Catalin's two "toughies" working hard at their tender-loving toy-task—in a representative selection from the many playthings molded of Catalin plastic raw materials. Your inquiry concerning these pictured items or as a manufacturer seeking further information about our complete line of molding and extrusion compounds, will be welcome.

Doepkes unveil their new line of pre-school "fun-to-grow-on" educational toys

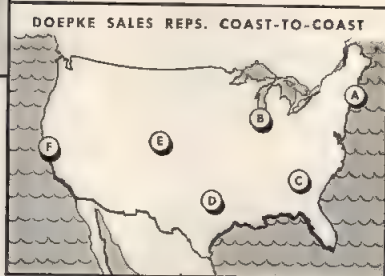

Not often in this business does a company enter a new field by presenting a complete new line the first time out. But that's what Charlie and Fritz Doepke are doing at this year's Toy Fair, and it has already paid off with massive orders for their new pre-school toys from some of the country's largest volume users.

For an even closer, more colorful view, Toy Fair buyers are invited to see the Doepke displays and pick up the new catalog at The Grand Ballroom, Hotel New Yorker . . . or Rooms 510-12, 200 Fifth Avenue Building.

Battery or gas-powered Super-Yardbird Streamliner, as well as original hand-powered Yardbird, continue to set new sales records and reap write-ups in top national magazines as Doepkes launch their new pre-school toy enterprise.

Growth of model plane industry means

Back in the early days of the model airplane business, the call was for Fokkers or Spads — today the demand is for supersonic jets. By keeping pace with the aviation industry, model makers are pointing the way to big profits for toy retailers.

By LOU COHEN President, Comet Model Hobbycraft, Inc.

FROM the cumbersome biplanes of 1917 to the sleek jets of 1957, the aviation industry has seen the world shrivel to the extent that distance is no longer measured in miles, but in hours. Keeping pace with aviation itself are the unsung heroes of the toy and hobby industry—the model plane makers.

By turning out authentic and realistic models of the Super Sabre, the B-52 Strato fortress and many other planes which guard our country against aggression, the model airplane industry has created a great and growing market among the youth of America. This is a market which offers toy retailers and jobbers a tremendous field for extra sales and profits.

The toy trade should be the greatest beneficiary of the expanding volume of the model airplane industry. Into the toy store or department comes a steady procession of youthful buyers, most often accompanied by their parents. These fathers and mothers realize the importance of keeping young hands and minds occupied in a constructive fashion. They know that busy children do not become juvenile delinquents. They are quick to agree that the building and flying of model airplanes combines construction with amusement.

However, only a comparatively small percentage of toy retailers devote enough of their store facilities to model airplane kits for them to capitalize to the fullest extent on the sales potential. Too often model airplane kits are confined to the back of the store where they occupy a shelf or two. Many dealers, on the other hand, have grasped the significance of the model airplane field and have given these items the space and attention they merit. Retailers who have done this, point to an impressive record of growth and profits in model airplane kits and accessories.

Toy stores should set up Model & Hobby Departments to give this segment of the business an identity of its own. From his many years of experience in the field our sales manager, Morrie Shamberg, has developed a sales philosophy which has helped many toy retailers. "Model planes," he says, "have a dual nature. They're toys—but actually they are more than toys. The fact that we make our model airplane kits exactly to scale takes them out of the toy class into craftsmanship.

"The boy who creates a finished model airplane by means of a Comet kit feels a sense of achievement and accomplishment when he looks at his finished work. He is proud of the fact that he has made something authentic—that the plane he has put together with his own hands is a faithful replica of a plane that is actually in use.

"Therefore," concludes Shamberg, "model airplanes should not be placed in the same category as toys. The toy retailer and his salespeople should familiarize themselves with the model airplane field so that they can talk model airplanes intelligently to their young customers. A definite section of the store should be reserved for model airplanes, with appropriate counter and wall displays. The number of toy dealers who have done this, with extremely profitable results, is growing."

In order to assure toy retailers that by recognizing the importance of the model airplane field and giving it their full support they will get a big slice of this "profit pie," Comet Model Hobbycraft is always on the alert to spot the new planes coming from the drafting boards of leading aviation firms. Comet's designing department has created a steady flow of model airplanes, faithfully scaled down from the originals, in both wood and plastic. Today there are over 150 different models bearing the Comet trademark. The constantly expanding market has made it possible for the firm to utilize mass production methods and highly specialized machinery to offer a standard of value undreamed of at the time Comet was founded 30 years ago.

steady repeat business for toy dealers

Among the most recent models produced by Comet is its all-plastic, ready-to-fly replica of the Mustang F-51, a U-Control true-to-scale gas model molded in high-impact plastic, packaged in a colorful protective chest. Sales figures show this $12.95 retailer to be the most popular plane of its type ever marketed. A whole family of Comet plastic plane models, each in a box featuring a full-color reproduction of the actual plane, covers every popular price range—at 29c, 39c, 69c, 98c, and two group boxes—the "Squadron of Six" and the "Big 6"—at $1.69 and $2.29. As an extra source of profits, Comet offers dealers a full line of paints and cement for plastics, and dope and cements for balsa models.

Because Comet's sales figures prove that balsa models continue to form a vital part of the model airplane industry, a field in itself with an impressive sales and profit potential, it has recently re-packaged all its balsa lines in colorful related packages, with realistic pictures of the planes in thrilling action. As of February 1st, all of Comet's famous assortments, created especially for the toy trade, will be made up of these new boxes.

Yes, it's a far cry from the first crude fighters to the fabulous jets of today, but we here at Comet are determined to remain abreast of each new aviation development, in order to give retailers greater opportunities for increased profit.

WHEREVER YOU GROW, THERE'S A GROWING DEMAND FOR JOHN DEERE FARM EQUIPMENT.

Mason Briscoe. "The crosses will almost always make that weight in two to three weeks less time."

Some packers even pay a premium for Brahman crossbred calves. "They sell right at the top of the Houston slaughter calf market right along," says C. B. Guthrie of the Port City Stockyards. "Buyers sometimes pay an extra $\frac{1}{2}\text{¢}$ to $1\frac{1}{2}\text{¢}$ a pound because of the 2% to 3% higher dressout."

Some southerners, like Edgar Hudgins of Wharton County, Tex., sell their Brahman-blood feedlot cattle on a dressed-weight basis, confident they will come out ahead because of the good dressing percentage. "We averaged an extra $1\frac{1}{2}\text{¢}$ a pound selling this way in '56," says Hudgins.

In research at the Texas Experiment Station (FARM JOURNAL, August 1955) covering more than 250 yearling carcasses, meats specialist O. D. Butler found that:

► Brahman-Hereford crosses dressed 2% to 3% higher than straight Herefords.

► Average shrink for a 100-mile truck ride was $5\frac{1}{2}\%$ for the crosses, 7% for the others.

► No real difference in wholesale-out weights.

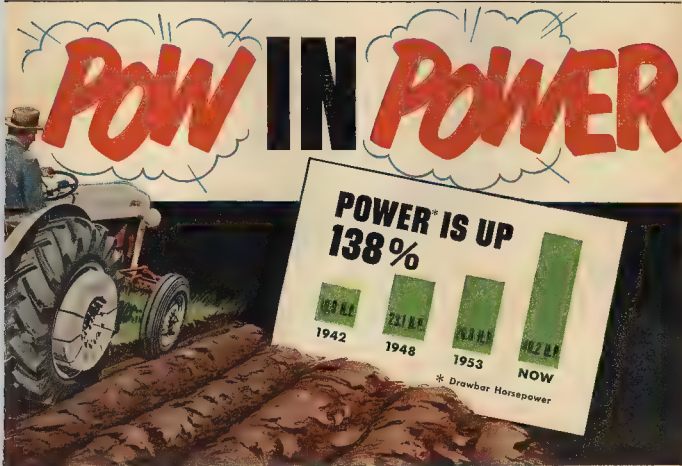

While there's no stampede to Brahman crosses, several northern feeders admitted amazement at the way their crossbreds performed. Said one: "I thought I'd bought a bunch of slogs yet they gained better than my high-priced cattle."

NEARLY 3 POUNDS GAIN A DAY for these Brahman-Angus steers on a 90-day, high-roughage feed in Lee Karr's Texas lots. Says Karr: "They dressed 58% with no grain; probably would have hit 62% or so with 60 days of grain."

LIVESTOCK

How good are Brahman crosses

THE American Brahman, after 100 years of "trial" in this country, seems to be finding its niche: for producing crossbred slaughter calves and feeders.

You may have seen the color photos in FARM JOURNAL last November showing some of the distinct breeds that have been formed from these crosses. But for each of these breeds there are dozens of crosses that carry some Brahman blood. They're not just in the South either. You'll see them in feedlots from California to Nebraska to Pennsylvania.

We've talked with farmers who have handled these crossbreds, and almost all agree that:

- ▶ They're fast gainers;
- ▶ Good foragers and roughage eaters;
- ▶ Many packers discriminate against them even though they dress out well;
- ▶ They're inclined to be nervous.

"My calves have amazing hybrid growth vigor," says Hugh Baker, Wells County, Ind. He breeds mixed dairy-type cows to a Brahman bull, sells the calves when they weigh about 600 pounds.

Ed Edlebrock, Allen County, Ohio, uses a Brahman bull on Brown Swiss cows and either veals the calves or sells them as short yearlings with about 90 days of corn. "They've consistently scaled 100 pounds heavier at 10 months than with either Swiss or beef bulls," he declares.

Howard Baum, another Ohio feeder, weans 550-pound calves from a Brahman bull and native cows (dairy-beef mixtures). After feeding another six or seven months he markets 950-pounders that dress out 62% or better.

Each year A. F. Crow of Iroquois County, Ill. buys 1,000 head or more of southern feeder cattle that carry about one-quarter Brahman blood.

He gets 'em for about a nickel a pound cheaper than western feeders. Crow sells on the Indianapolis market, claims that packers there stopped discounting his cattle after he got them to check cut-out figures.

As you might expect, Brahman crosses have a lot of friends in southern feedlots. One of them is Lee Karr, a custom feedlot operator near Georgetown, Tex. He says: "Three years ago less than 10% of the cattle we fed had Brahman blood. Now it's 40%. They're the only kind that have made money the last few years."

Karr continues: "They cost from five to six cents less than English breed feeders, and they gain as well or better on our high-roughage feeding."

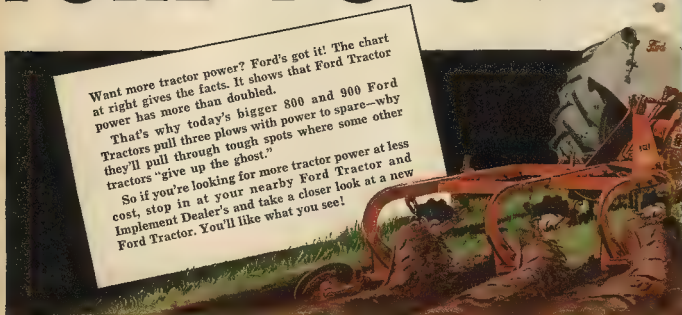

The Texas Prison system feeds up to 1,000 crossbred steers a year, along with an equal number of Herefords. "Starting with 500-pound weaners, we like to get them up to 750 pounds in 90 days or so," says livestock manager

FORD PUTS THE

Want more tractor power? Ford's got it! The chart at right gives the facts. It shows that Ford Tractor power has more than doubled.

That's why today's bigger 800 and 900 Ford Tractors pull three plows with power to spare—why they'll pull through tough spots where some other tractors "give up the ghost."

So if you're looking for more tractor power at less cost, stop in at your nearby Ford Tractor and Implement Dealer's and take a closer look at a new Ford Tractor. You'll like what you see!

RAKING—It takes only a few minutes to attach the Ford side-delivery rake to any Ford tractor; then you just "pick it up and go." There's nothing to slow you down when going to and from the field. And when raking, you can quickly lift the rake over obstructions; make short turns without cramping; rake cleaner on the curves; get into and out of the tight spots easily. But that's not all. The Ford rake handles hay gently even while you rake at faster speeds.

Its unique side-motion means shorter movement from swath to windrow, less chattering of leaves. And its extra width handles a full mower swath with ease. You'll like the 2-speed drive, the 22 sealed ball bearings, and the even, well formed windrows provided by Ford's exclusive rotary stripper.

BALING—The Ford 250 hay baler comes closer to the goal of non-stop, trouble-free baling than any other popular-priced baler ever offered. Dependable tying, bale after bale, is the secret.

You'll also like the way it handles heavy hay crops and big windrows with ease, as well as loose, fluffy hay and short straw. And you'll like the tight, evenly packed bales it puts out—the kind of bales that handle and stack easier, and sell better.

But there's a lot more to the Ford 250 baler than its unusual ability to make good bales. You'll find it is extremely simple in design, with up to 30% fewer wearing parts. That's a big reason why it stays on the job and needs less fixing. You'll also like its compact size and light weight. It "gets around easier" in the field and takes up less storage space in the shed.

Best of all, you'll like its low price. Even small-acreage owners report it usually saves money over custom baling. And it makes money by being ready when your hay is ready, capturing more of the hay's feeding value at the peak of its richness. Your choice of engine or PTO models.

So whatever your haying equipment needs might be, it will pay you to talk them over with your nearby Ford Tractor and Implement Dealer. Let him help you figure how you can reduce haying costs with Ford haying equipment. Figure, too, how much work you can save . . . and have better hay in the bargain! Easy terms are available, too.

Ford Farming

IS POWER FARMING

Here's how to make PASTURE FRESH HAY Ford's easy way

MOWING—Good haying starts with good mowing. And that's why so many farmers prefer a Ford tractor-mower outfit. It handles easily because the mower is fully mounted on the easy-to-drive Ford tractor. You can cut faster and cut square corners right down to the last swath. You can mow faster in heavy hay because Ford mowers are built for heavy cutting at faster tractor speeds. And you are safer along ditches or on hillsides because Ford tractors hug the ground. You'll like the quick-attaching design of Ford mowers, as well as the easy adjustments, quick lift and built-in safety features. And there's a wide choice of Ford mowers for every mowing need. See them!

NEW FORD RANCHERO

Looking at the boldly modern styling of the new Ford Ranchero, you may find it hard to believe that it's actually a man-sized truck, built to do a man-sized job. But it won't take you long to find there's a lot of heft behind the Ranchero's glamour.

It carries more than half a ton. That's more capacity than many standard pickup trucks offer. The body floor is over six feet from front to back. Loading height is only 26 inches . . . lower than any pickup. No matter how you look at it, the new Ford Ranchero is a real workhorse.

And it's even more! The Ranchero is great for those mixed work-and-pleasure trips to town—wonderful as a “car” when work is done. It gives you luxury and handling ease that can only be compared with that of fine cars.

The new Ford Ranchero is surprising in many ways, not the least of which is its low price. Never before has so much style and luxury been packed into so rugged a vehicle at such a low price.

The Ranchero is at your Ford Dealer's now. Come in and see this new idea in pickups!

FAMILY EARNS ITS KEEP

We agree with all the American farmers who look for two essentials in the power and transportation equipment they purchase for their farming needs.

They want the maximum in service—the minimum in upkeep and repairs.

For over half a century these have also been our goals in designing and manufacturing the various members of the Ford Farm Family. Our cars, trucks, tractors, and farm implements all share the same kind of high built-in value. Value that gives you the most for your money when you buy—and in the long, long life of versatile service you expect and get.

The American farmer has learned at first hand the rugged dependability that's characteristic of these vehicles. That's why so many American farms are powered by our trucks, tractors and cars.

New way to feed sorghum

NEWEST way to harvest grain sorghum is to cut off just the heads when they're in the dough stage and put them in the silo.

As feed, silage made from the heads alone is about equal to ear corn silage (see page 38), say Iowa State College researchers.

But the big advantage of "sorghum head silage" is that it's a cheaper and easier way to harvest and store the crop for feed. There's no waiting for the heads to get dry enough to combine. No worries about heating and insect damage in the bin, either. And it's a whole of a lot cheaper to build a bunker or trench silo than to put up grain bins. You can cover it with plastic to keep down surface spoilage.

"All in all, we think it's just about the ideal way to hold our grain sorghum crop until we're ready to feed it," say G. A. Furgason, general manager of Norris Cattle Co., Ocala, Fla.

"We plan to use it as a fattening ration for steers," says Tommy Mack, assistant manager of Norris. "Tests we ran last year tell us we can expect 2½ pounds or better daily gain from feeding 30 pounds of sorghum head silage along with two pounds of protein supplement," he continues. "So in our operations, the head silage—we averaged 5,800 pounds per acre last year—will replace either a keep ownership of their cattle," says Paul Newell, Extension livestock specialist. "For that reason, we don't sort at our auctions. However, nothing but Good and Choice cattle are allowed."

"Apparently some midwesterners aren't as slow to see a good thing as some others. More than 50 buyers, hailing from Indiana, Kansas, Missouri and other points, were on our yards yesterday buying stocker calves for 18¢ to 22¢ a hundred," comments H. H. Carter, commission man at the South Memphis, Tenn. stockyards. "Apparently they don't think we're so dumb!"

Finally the woods are full of cow-herd owners with enough volume to sell direct. Even Corn Belt feeders know about the big "reputation herds" in Texas and Oklahoma.

But Corn Belt feeders better get busy if they want many southern cattle. "We're promoting the feeding of more cattle in this state," says J. S. Buchanan, Extension beef specialist in North Carolina.

"Florida feeds over 125,000 cattle now and will continue to increase," T. J. Cunha of the University of Florida tells FARM JOURNAL.

Just to show we hold no grudges, we've assembled a directory of state supervised sales and public markets for you Yankers (see page 42). We can't list all the good herds, but the contact in the last column of this directory will tell you.

So, come on down for a taste of southern hospitality and a carload of darn good feeder cattle. We guarantee you won't have to wear out your Cadillac finding them either.

Tests Show New Ways To Hog Profits

About 2,000 hogmen picked up some good "take-home" ideas at Purdue's Swine Day this week. Here are some things they heard that may help you.

- Growing hogs pay only $15 to $26 an acre "rent" for pasture.
- Hogs cooled with a water mist and shade gain $\frac{1}{4}$ -pound more a day than those in shade only, or a wallow and shade.
- Gestating gilts on corn silage do best with an additional $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds of protein supplement, and 1 to 2 pounds of corn.
- Added phosphate saved up to 50 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain.

Pasture feeding saved between 15% and 23% of the supplement, but practically no corn in a comparison of pasture and drylot.

"Limited feeding on pasture would make it show up better," remarks J. H. Conrad. But then, of course, hogs would gain slower.

How do gilts do on corn silage?

Like sows, they need about $\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. of protein and 1 or 2 lbs. of corn with their 10 lbs. corn silage. It's dangerous to skimp on supplement and corn.

The Purdue people tried it on one lot—found that these gilts were farrowing weak litters of scouring pigs. They lost 30% of their pigs; couldn't stop the loss with antibiotics.

A complete feed mix for hogs being finished on pasture should have at least .45% phosphorus (a little more than that in drylot). "To be safe, feed a mineral mixture free choice," advises M. P. Plumlee.

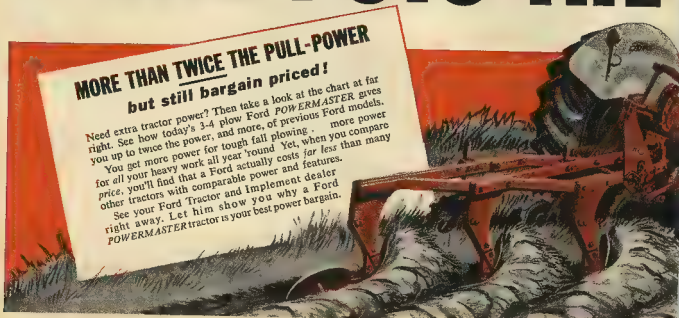

Gains went up 25% on a 10% protein ration when phosphorus level was increased from .28% to .45%. On a 14% protein ration, raising phosphorus from .3% to .45% saved 30 pounds feed per hundred pounds gain. And when the content was increased to .6% an additional 20 pounds was saved.

but still bargain priced!

Need extra tractor power? Then take a look at the chart at far right. See how today's 3-4 plow Ford POWERMASTER gives you up to twice the power, and more, of previous Ford models. You get more power for tough fall plowing. . . more power for all your heavy work all year 'round. Yet, when you compare price, you'll find that a Ford actually costs for less than many other tractors with comparable power and features.

farm trucks COST YOU LESS

Whatever your acreage, whatever you grow, you're way ahead with modern Ford Farm Trucks. Ahead because they give you more and do more ... ahead because they cost you less!

Ford's new half-ton pickup with Styleside body is a good example. The sides of the body extend to the sides of the cab, providing 23% more load-space than any 6½- or 7-footers—and the Styleside is standard at no extra cost! There's a roomier, all-new Driverized cab for greater comfort, plus a new suspension that gives you a ride mighty close to that of a passenger car! Engine advances, too!

And even with all these "extras," Ford Trucks actually cost less. First cost is low. Modern Short Stroke engines are designed for low running cost. Resale value is traditionally high. And an independent study of over 10 million trucks proves Ford Trucks last longer!

On every job around the farm, in the field or on the highway, modern Ford Trucks do more ... to cost you less! Call your local Ford Dealer for a demonstration ride!

INDUSTRIAL ENGINES

More and more, when a farmer owns a Ford or Mercury or Lincoln, you find he also owns a Ford tractor and implements. And often a Ford truck, too.

That's because, in this big, dependable Ford Farm Family, farmers find a wide range of versatile machinery for every mobile power and transportation need.

For example, in tractors: there are now 11 general purpose, special utility and row-crop models, as well as 2 Fordson Major diesels to give you just the right power for your kind of farming.

In trucks: the widest variety in our history. New, this year, is the Ford Styleside Pickup. Sides of the box are flush with the width of the cab; load area is nearly six feet wide, giving you up to 25% more space.

Of course, the big reason farmers like the Ford Farm Family is the value they find in everything Ford Motor Company makes. Because our cars, trucks, tractors and implements all share the same fine research, engineering, and testing, you get the maximum in service, the minimum in upkeep and repairs.

The Ford Farm Family works for a living. Our trucks, tractors, cars and implements are built (1) to give you the power and transportation you need for your kind of farming, (2) to do it at low cost, (3) to give you years of rugged, dependable service.

To make sure they're right for you, every member of our Family has the big advantage of Ford Motor Company's vast research, engineering and testing facilities.

For example, at our Research and Engineering Center, over 200 specialists are constantly at work on engines alone . . . testing, improving and refining the many different types and sizes of engines designed to fit the power needs of our cars, trucks and tractors.

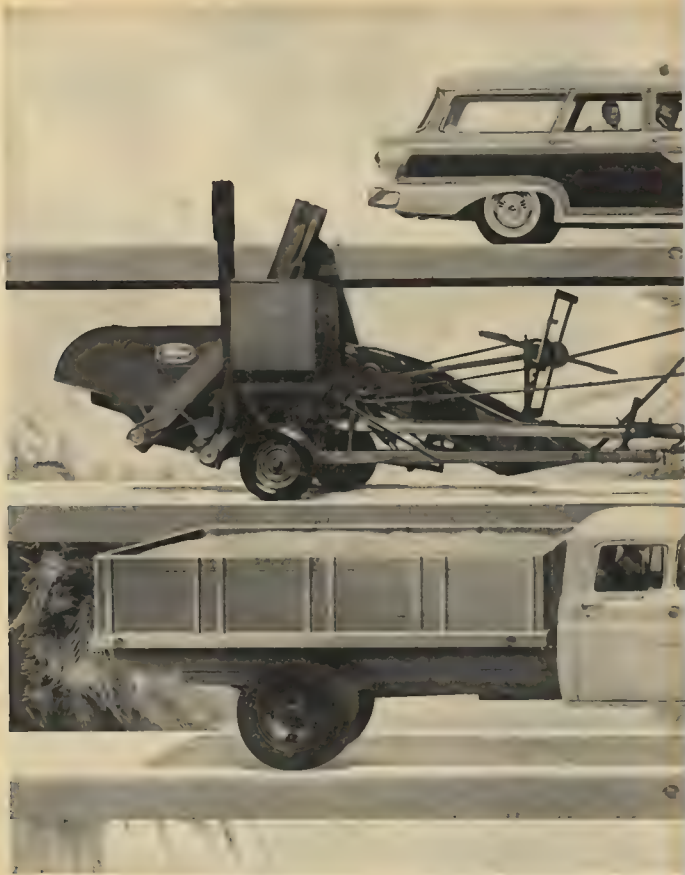

On our test tracks, cars, trucks, tractors and farm equipment undergo the most brutal torture tests ever devised for anything on wheels. And in field testing, tractors are given more punishment than you could give in a whole lifetime of use.

The result: a complete Farm Family, ruggedly designed, economical to run, and serving your every mobile power and transportation need.

rect, can usually make more profit than by selling to wholesalers," believes Mrs. Walter Todebusch, St. Charles County, Mo.

"We sell about $1,000 worth of eggs a year from our flock," explains Mrs. Hadley Voigts, Johnson County, Kan. "Customers drive out to the farm for half of those, and we deliver the other half on the route."

"We raise our own grain, and our replacements, and sell the eggs the year 'round at 50¢ a dozen, so we can compete with anyone," she emphasizes. Mrs. Voigts says they could get all the customers they want if they decide to increase the size of the flock. Some of her customers are even other farmers.

Their own brand name is another wrinkle some farmers are using. Bob Smith, Montgomery County, Ind., sells the eggs from 1,688 hens—graded and in cartons labeled "White Feather Farms" cage eggs, Grade A (see photo, above). He sells mostly for a premium through local grocery stores.

"Any number of farmers in our part of the country can sell their own eggs on special markets and compete with poultrymen on an integrated plan," says C. K. Laurent, head of the poultry department at the University of Georgia.

But Laurent adds that the increased emphasis on quality will force the small flock to grow until it has enough volume to justify egg coolers, name brands and egg routes. He suggests that a family that wants a full-time job in commercial egg production should aim to keep 2,000 to 3,000 hens, and expect a normal net return of about $1.50 per hen.

He Has Liked Wire Floors For 16 Years

Wire floors for layers have been around for years, but they're in the midst of a new boom right now as poultrymen try to eliminate litter and moisture, and put more birds into less space.

What does a man think after using

POULTRY

"I CAN PUSH my own brand of quality eggs as well as a big outfit can," says Indiana farmer Bob Smith. He sells his White Feather Farms eggs to local retail stores at a premium.

wire floors for 16 years? Ralph Bell of Greene Co., Pa. can answer that one.

He hated cleaning out pens so much as a boy that he decided to try wire floors in 1941. Then nine years ago he built his present modern laying house, and incorporated all of the wire-floor ideas that he had learned in his seven previous years of trial and error.

Except for a few repairs in spots where the traffic has been heaviest, the same wire still serves today. And he's sold more than ever on the benefits of raised, wire floors.

Bell's house is one-story, 40 feet wide with two 100-foot pens on either side of a 20-foot feed room. He raises three flocks every two years in confinement, and houses as many as 2,500 heavy breed hens per pen.

The house is tight, well-ventilated and has plenty of height—15 feet above the wire at the ridgepole. The wire itself is 1" x 4", 11 gauge mesh, on 5' x 20' frames that rest on floor poles 28" above the dirt.

Bell says the mesh is wide enough so droppings fall through readily and the birds keep it clean and shiny. Yet it's strong enough for a man to step on. He takes out the frames after each flock moves to market, and goes in with a tractor scoop to clean out the pits.

"We have no foot troubles from the wire," Bell says. "Some fumes rise from the pit manure at times, but so far it's caused no eye trouble."

Bell gathers eggs four times a day, and gets remarkably clean ones. He has individual wall nests, and the birds roost right on the wire. They're crowded enough to keep the room warm in winter so that the droppings never freeze.

Until this year, he's had dusting pits at the end of each pen so the birds could hop down from the wire and scratch around. But he's not so sure they're necessary.

Production? It ranges from a low of 50% to 60%, up to 90% during the eight to nine months he keeps each flock.

HOGS MAKE "PIGS" OF THEMSELVES, eat too much supplement if you feed it separately, say hogmen who've switched to complete mixed feeds. They claim faster gains; get their hogs on better markets.

While Charlie Stephen's record with ground mixed ration on pasture is a pretty good argument for the system, let's see what some of the Experiment Stations say.

Most test results agree that you'll be money ahead if you feed mixed rations until pigs weigh about 70 pounds. But here the agreement ends. Some researchers say that you can't afford mixed rations after this weight—the extra grinding cost and feed waste gobble up any advantage from possible faster gains.

Others point out that complete rations will pay when you are pushing hogs to avoid a price break. In practically every test, hogs fed a complete ration have gained faster. But the big joker comes when you add $3 to $4 a ton for grinding and mixing.

However, competition among feed dealers, grain elevators and local feed mixers is changing this cost picture in many sections of the Corn Belt. Charlie Stephen, for instance, gets his corn shelled, hauled, ground, mixed to his specifications and delivered into his self feeders for $4 a ton. He can get delivery on as little as 500 pounds, but if he telephones for 5 tons, he gets a $2 a ton discount.

Charlie's feed dealer, Bud Swanson, says that at least 90% of his hog supplement goes out to farms in bulk trucks as mixed feed. Swanson's crew also vaccinates and worms pigs for the cost of materials. If you want to check your cost of gains, they'll weigh your pigs free every 30 days. Swanson figures making his money on increased volume of supplement.

But whether you will make money feeding complete mixed rations may depend largely upon the feed business competition in your area. The Charlie Stephens in the Corn Belt are sure it's the thing for them.

Dual wheel. This model has won farmers' praise everywhere. It offers the crop clearance most farmers like for working normal-spaced row crops, yet it maintains all the convenience features that have made Ford Tractors so popular. It's an excellent match for the outstanding Ford 2-row mounted corn picker—the picker that cuts shelled-corn losses in half. Find out more from your nearby dealer.

LIVESTOCK

Can hogs really do an economical job of balancing their own rations? More and more farmers doubt it, and say...

Hogs aren't that smart!

BY DEAN C. WOLF

A TIME-HONORED piece of hog-feeding gospel is losing ground in the Corn Belt.

Hog raisers are questioning whether pigs are really smart enough to economically balance their own ration when you give them a free choice of grain and supplement.

The trend is toward self-feeding a complete ground mixed ration. Pigs still get all they want to eat. But they no longer get to choose what they like best. Even the smaller operators are beginning to feed this way.

It's no surprise to a few old hands like Charlie Stephen Poweshiek County, Iowa. Charlie started grinding and mixing in 1949, and he's more sold now than ever.

A case in point are the records on his last February farrowed pigs. He admits he had some luck in raising 121 pigs from 12 sows, but it took more than luck to keep his feed cost down to $8.30 per hundred from birth to market. He figured corn at $1.45 and oats at 60c a bushel paid going prices for supplement.

And those costs included sow feed during the suckling period and veterinary bills—everything except labor, land rental and buildings depreciation.

Charlie sold his pigs for $16.35. They weighed 222 pounds apiece and averaged only five months and one day of age! That's a gain of 1.45 pounds per day and a pound of pork for 3.6 pounds of feed, including sow feed.

That rate of gain could be some kind of a record believes E. L. Quaife, veteran extension swine specialist at Iowa State College. At least it's the best ever turned in by nearly 2,000 top hog raisers competing for Iowa's coveted Master Swine Producer awards the past 15 years.

Single wheel. A powerful tractor that "handles like a dream"—excellent for most irrigated row crops, and tops in narrow-spaced crops. You get pinpoint steering accuracy with Ford's work-easy power steering (standard on all Ford row crop models). Up-front cultivators of drive-in, quick hook-up design make easy work of cultivating crops like corn and cotton. The design of the front-wheel support means less chance of clogging from mud and trash—another Ford exclusive.

Wide-adjustable front axle.

If your preference is for the stability, flotation and ease of handling provided by the four-wheel design in plowing, seed-bed preparation and heavy harvesting operations, Ford has it here—and yet it lets you have "up-front" cultivation with drive-in, quickly attached cultivators. Try Ford's power steering, power adjusted rear wheels and all those other features that make Ford the best year-round tractor on the farm.

VALENTINA DANCING BALLERINA

with the Amazing Jointed Body that Bends and Swivels at Waist

Becomes Regular
Walking Doll

Does a Split
and Back Bend

Bends and Swivels —
Ankles, Knees and Body

Kicks Out with
Knee Bent or Straight

STAR OF THE BALLET. Valentina Ballerina will dance right into your heart. Authentic in every detail, she wears long dance hose, real CAPEZIO Slippers and the glamorous tutu of the Blue Bird Ballet. Because her knees and ankles are flexible she assumes all of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by the touch of the finger.

But that's not all! For the first time in history a doll ingeniously jointed — at the waist, permitting her to bend and turn or sway in any direction. Her head is of soft life-like vinyl. Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. Her arms, too, are of the same skin-like vinyl, and are shaped to take on the graceful pose of a ballerina. The body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps. By lowering her foot to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Valentina comes with a 3 way reflector practice bar that serves as a stand and as an attractive display piece. You'll treasure Valentina Ballerina for years and years. Truly a doll masterpiece!

DOREENA BALLET TOUR

36 PIECE DOLL, WARDROBE and STAGE SET

This 20" package of joy is the greatest thrill ever for your little dancer. Her head is soft life-like vinyl! Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. The body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps, and turns her head from side to side. But, that's not all!!! Because her knees and ankles are flexible and she can assume any of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by a touch of the finger. By lowering her foot to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Along with the Doreena Doll is her wardrobe for street wear and stage wear.

She has authentic Ballet costumes for:

- Swan Lake
- The Nutcracker and, Oh yes!
- Beau Danube
- A leotard for practice, too

Going to and from the theatre — she must wear street clothes — so she has regular walking shoes and short socks — a lovely street dress and a dainty little coat and hat. Her shoes are by CAPEZIO. When she has a formal to attend after the theatre, she wears her beautiful velvet Beau Danube costume with a matching velvet stole. For sleeping, she has a lovely sheer Nylon nightgown. An extra pair of dance shoes and dance hose are also included — Not to mention hangers for her things, and curlers to change her hair style from time to time.

Since she sometimes performs at parties and teas, she has her own stage which travels with her — and her wardrobe hangs in the two sections that fit right into this compact set. There never was a doll like this before.

and Back Bend

Bends and Swivels —
Ankles, Knees and Body

Kicks Out with
Knee Bent or Straight

STAR OF THE BALLET. Valentina Ballerina will dance right into your heart. Authentic in every detail, she wears long dance hose, real CAPEZIO Slippers and the glamorous tutu of the Blue Bird Ballet. Because her knees and ankles are flexible she assumes all of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by the touch of the finger.

But that's not all! For the first time in history a doll ingeniously jointed — at the waist, permitting her to bend and turn or sway in any direction. Her head is of soft life-like vinyl. Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. Her arms, too, are of the same skin-like vinyl, and are shaped to take on the graceful pose of a ballerina. The body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps. By lowering her foot to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Valentina comes with a 3 way reflector practice bar that serves as a stand and as an attractive display piece. You'll treasure Valentina Ballerina for years and years. Truly a doll masterpiece!

DOREENA BALLET TOUR

36 PIECE DOLL, WARDROBE and STAGE SET

This 20" package of joy is the greatest thrill ever for your little dancer. Her head is soft life-like vinyl! Her eyes open and close. Her hair is saran and is rooted in her scalp (actually imbedded like real hair) in a long full ponytail style. The body and legs are fine unbreakable plastic. When you hold her and lead her she takes short dancing steps, and turns her head from side to side. But, that's not all!!! Because her knees and ankles are flexible and she can assume any of the positions illustrated and hundreds more merely by a touch of the finger. By lowering her foot to a normal walking position she can be dressed in street clothes and becomes a regular walking doll. Along with the Doreena Doll is her wardrobe for street wear and stage wear.

She has authentic Ballet costumes for:

- Swan Lake
- The Nutcracker and, Oh yes!
- Beau Danube
- A leopard for practice, too

Going to and from the theatre — she must wear street clothes — so she has regular walking shoes and short socks — a lovely street dress and a dainty little coat and hat. Her shoes are by CAPEZIO. When she has a formal to attend after the theatre, she wears her beautiful velvet Beau Danube costume with a matching velvet stole. For sleeping, she has a lovely sheer Nylon nightgown. An extra pair of dance shoes and dance hose are also included — Not to mention hangers for her things, and curlers to change her hair style from time to time.

Since she sometimes performs at parties and teas, she has her own stage which travels with her — and her wardrobe hangs in the two sections that fit right into this compact set. There never was a doll like this before.

Congratulations from the editors of YACHTING to the owners and drivers of the eight boats picked and of all those considered. And to the judges, our sincere thanks.

Unlimited Inboard Hydroplanes—Results of the voting, Shanty I—William Waggoner, Seattle, Wash., Jones & Staudacher hull, Allison motor (12 votes); Miss Thriftway—Willard Rhodes, Seattle, Wash., Jones & Staudacher hull, Allison motor (3).

Shanty I, the big Allison-powered hydro which was designed by Ted Jones and built by Les Staudacher completed an enviable season's record under the daring handling of Air Force jet pilot Lt. Col. Russ Schlee. She emerged the big winner from the early-season Lake Tahoe regatta. From there she moved to her home port of Seattle to capture the Seafair Trophy race, in the course of which she set new course records for

The Mercury motor and Swift hull of Dean Chenoweth was an outstanding favorite of our judges. The Xenia, Ohio college student did well competitively throughout 1956 and won the Nationals for his ASH class at Cambridge, Md.

William Holloway's Mercury-powered Swift hydro showed its heels to most of its competitors in the season's racing. It also won for the Monroe, Mich. driver the D stock hydro national championship.

Mel Hughes, Class D, Swift-Mercury was well in contention for high point honors. Dave Kough drove his Mercury-motored Sid Craft to a National Championship. William McClung's McClung hull and Merc was also a National champ.

Billy Schumacher, the Seattle youngster, caught the eye of 5 of our judges by a successful season with his Benson-Mercury rig and a one mile mark of 27.584 m.p.h.

John Jackson of Cincinnati climaxed a fine competitive season by winning National Championship honors with his Mercury-powered Speedliner.

Bob Jacobson of Flint, Mich. did well in both closed course and marathon racing. High spot of his boat's year was winning the Winnebagoand Marathon.

lap, heat and total race (90 miles). Her final win for the year was in turning back with ease the Canadian challenge for the Harmsworth Trophy. At season's end she ranked as high-point boat of the class and National Champion.

Miss Thriftway, the Willard Rhodes craft turned out by Jones and Staudacher and powered by Allison, won the Gold Cup and the ensuing protests, as well as the President's Cup.

Limited Inboard Hydroplane—Results of the voting: Wa Wa Too—266 cu. in.—William Rtner, Sr., Camden, N.J., Lauterbach hull, Chevrolet motor (8 votes); Little Rackett II 48 cu. in.—J. A. Colcock, Seattle, Wash., Colcock hull, Crosley motor (4); Restless 7 litre Edgar Kaiser, Oakland, Cal., Hallett hull, Chrysler motor (3).

William Rtner, Sr.'s Chevrolet-powered Wa Wa Too was campaigned with builder Henry Lauterbach at the wheel. She opened her season by turning back the Italian bid for the International Grand Prix at Miami, besting the famous Ezio Silva craft. She has since proven to be a most consistent winner. Among the laurels gathered during the year have been high point standing and the National Championship of the 266 cu. in. hydro class.

Jack Colcock drove his home-made hull with Crosley engine to the 48 cu. in. National Championship. During 1956 he also created a new 5 mile class record of 67.517 m.p.h.

The Hallett hull and Chrysler engine combination that is Edgar Kaiser's Restless set a new 7 litre competition record of 68.877 m.p.h.

Inboard Runabout Results of the voting: Lil Bee—Class B Racing—Ernest Rose, Patterson, Cal., Speedliner hull, Ford motor (6 votes); Bouncy Barb—Class E Racing—Ed Brown, Sacramento, Cal., Brown hull, Chevrolet motor (3); Jr. Prowler—Class F Service—Forest Johnson, Miami, Fla., Johnson hull, Connell motor (3), Nellie Belle—44 cu. in.—Weldon Ropp, Miami, Fla., Scull hull, Crosley motor (3).

Limited Inboard Hydroplane—"Wa Wa Too," Lauterbach hull and Chevrolet motor, William Rtner, Sr.

owned and driven by Ernest Rose, is no newcomer to the All American, having been selected as tops on the 1954 team. During the past year this Ford-powered Speedliner hull became the National Champion and boosted the 5 mile mark to 61.517 m.p.h.

Bouncy Barb was designed, built, owned and driven by Ed Brown. In addition to seldom losing a race, she won the class Nationals.

Forest Johnson's Connell engine Jr. Prowler became champion of her class; romped to a new competitive record of 51.843 m.p.h.

The 44 cu. in. runabout Nellie Belle consists of a Crosley engine in a hull by the late Mully Scull. She was inboard high point boat.

Outboard Hydroplane—Results of the voting: Doug Creech, Charlotte, N.C.—Class C—Neal hull, Johnson motor (4 votes); Orlando Torngiani, Bakersfield, Cal.—Class A—Fillinger hull, Johnson motor (2); Hubert Entrop, Seattle, Wash.—Class F—Jones hull, Mercury motor (1); Dr. Tommy Ingalls, Bakersfield, Cal.—Class C—DeSilva hull, Hubbell motor (1); Eric Molinar, Hollywood, Cal.—Class M—Mosher hull, Evinrude motor (1); Johnny Maypole, Chicago, Ill.—Class C—Neal hull, Johnson motor (1); Henry Wagner, Folsom, Cal.—Class C Service—DeSilva hull, Evinrude motor (1).

Doug Creech capped a most successful year with his Johnson-motored Neal class C hydro by winning the National Championship.

YACHTING's Eighth Annual All of The Outstanding Boat in Hubert Entrop became the scourge of F and free-for-all racing with his Mercury motor and unusual Ted Jones designed hull.

Eric Molinar and Henry Wagner both won the Nationals in their class.

Tommy Ingalls was undefeated; Johnny Maypole set a new mile record of more than 69 m.p.h.

Outboard Runabout—Results of the voting: Manuel Carnakis, Bakersfield, Cal.—Class G Service—DeSilva hull, Elto motor (4 votes); Chuck Parsons, Lodi, Cal.—Class F Racing—Hoggatt hull, Pumper motor (4); Lon Stevens, Oakland, Cal.—Class G Racing—DeSilva hull, Evinrude motor (3).

For the first time in the long history of YACHTING's All American Racing Teams, our judges gave us a tie vote. This even split found four of them favoring Manuel Carnakis' C Service outboard runabout with DeSilva hull and Elto motor while an equal number preferred Chuck Parsons' Pumper-powered Hoggatt hull—an F racing runabout.

There being no equitable means of resolving such a tie, it was decided to bestow equal honors on each of these Californians. Their performances deserve no lesser treatment as each campaigned with great success and each won the National Championship of his class at the annual title meet at Long Beach, Cal.

Closer on the heels of the two tied leaders was Lon Stevens' Evinrude-DeSilva combination with which he capped the C racing National title.

implement to be used - attach the V-belt, lock the trigger and you have the best machine of its kind available. WITH PUMP AND HEATER under sink. John Walker, Va., unhooks just 2 pipes to move.

TWO-PIECE SYSTEM has pump under sink with water heater in separate cabinet (right).

Portable water system

SOME enterprising tenant farmers at last have come up with an answer for the old farmhouse that still doesn't have running water. They're putting together water systems that can be moved to the next farm just like a piece of furniture.

The idea is simple: Just mount a pump, pressure tank and small water heater underneath a cabinet sink. Use plastic pipe to hook the pump to a nearby well and to run a drain line out from the sink, plug in to a 110-volt current, and you have hot and cold running water.

Of course you still don't have the convenience of a bathroom. And it's not as good as a full-size system if you own your farm or plan to live permanently where you are now. But these portable units certainly beat carrying water in a bucket.

The new, compact pumps, which will handle wells as deep as 70 feet, fit nicely under most cabinet sinks. A 10- or 12-gallon water heater is enough to handle the dishes, a washer of clothes or a bath.

When you finally put in a full-size system later on, you'll find your portable unit ideal for the dairy or for a summer cottage.

Potomac fever, it is said, frequently infects those who have spent much time in Washington. Its symptom is an intense desire to continue staying there. After having had to spend much of the winter in Washington, I am pleased to report that my Potomac fever temperature stands no higher than about 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

*

Perhaps the exposure was light, inasmuch as the assignment was part-time and temporary. It was possible to get away enough to attend to most of my FARM JOURNAL chores. The work, as you may have noted on another page last month, was as executive director of the President's Commission on Increased Industrial Uses for Agricultural Products.

*

The Commission says that agriculture has been "researched" right out of its own natural domains, in several ways. Industrial research has moved in with synthetic fibers in place of natural ones, detergents in place of soaps, plastics in place of leather, alcohol from natural gas instead of grain, and now paints from synthetic materials instead of those grown on the farms.

*

In brief, the report makes a strong case for trebling the present research on industrial uses, for starting a vigorous search to develop new crops, and for the incentives and commercial development work that will most quickly return some benefit to farmers.

*

The program proposed by the Commission should cost around $100 million a year. Considering that more than $3 billion now go for soil bank and price supports each year, with little permanent gain from either, it should be wise economy to invest this amount in trying to obtain results that will last.

EATON

2-SPEED TRUCK AXLES

"SAVINGS..

more than paid for my EATON 2-SPEED AXLE"

reports truck farmer

"Now that we have our Eaton-equipped GMC truck, two men can do the work that formerly required four," says Mr. Reeve of C. T. Reeve & Son. "At the same time, we also eliminated extra starts and stops, put an end to stalling and bucking—and broken axles are no longer a problem."

"With the low-gear range of our Eaton 2-Speed Axle, we get slow, steady, powerful speeds even in muddy soil. In fact, after the driver starts the truck, he dismounts and helps load. The low low-gear range of Eaton 2-Speed keeps the truck crawling slowly and surely right on down the cauliflower row."

"No matter how rough the weather or terrain, that Eaton 2-Speed pulls a heavy load right on through... takes slick, steep hills without hesitation. Going over the road—our fields are six miles from home—Eaton's high gear range delivers fast legal speeds without engine strain. Actually, the Eaton Axle has doubled truck efficiency."

An Eaton 2-Speed Axle helps make farming more efficient, more profitable. Ask your truck dealer for a demonstration.

C. T. REEVE & SON

grow cauliflower, corn, potatoes, lima beans, grain and strawberries on 140 acres, use their Eaton-equipped truck for field and highway hauling. "A truck with an Eaton 2-Speed is easier to handle through traffic, saves time making city deliveries," says George C. Reeve. "The Eaton Axle saves gasoline, and assures longer truck life."

gains? "Simply by making an animal more efficient," said Gassner. "Cattle normally void a lot of material in feed that could produce meat. Hormones cut that loss. Male-type hormones, particularly, retain nitrogen—a corner stone of efficient nutrition."

Added Clegg: "Stilbestrol implants approximately double the nitrogen a treated steer retains, which means more protein. We've found a 3% increase in lean meat and a 10% to 15% larger loin eye—at the expense of fat."

What about growth boosters for heifers?

Burroughs: "Stilbestrol in feed will cheapen heifer gains, although not as much as for steers."

Beeson: "For heifers I wouldn't recommend implants. They'll increase gains but you get too many severe side effects." Among these are excessive ridging, raised tailheads, flattened loins.

Gassner: "We are getting some very promising results with natural hormones for heifers. The balance is quite different than in steers because the heifer produces her own hormones."

Should you use growth boosters in any form on pasture?

Depends on the pasture, they said. "The response varies a great deal," remarked Beeson, "probably due to the natural hormone content of the pasture. Legumes, we know, contain rather large amounts of estrogens (female hormones) at certain stages of growth. We've averaged the results from several states where steers on pasture alone (no grain) were treated with 24 mg. implants. They report about a half pound extra daily gain.

"Last summer we fed steers ground corn and supplement on pasture for 125 days. Our control lot averaged 2.71 lbs. daily gain. Another that got 10 mgs. stilbestrol in feed gained only 2.5 lbs. a day. Steers that got a 24 mg. implant average an even 3 lbs., and those treated with a 36 mg. implant gained 3.17 lbs.

"Carcasses from the 10 mg. daily feed and 36 mg. implants graded lower than the controls. But the 24 mg. implant group graded the same. Obviously something prevented the stilbestrol-infected from working."

Beeson then referred to a recent Colorado test in which heifers were fed freshly chopped alfalfa and grain. Those that got 10 milligrams stilbestrol in their daily feed gained slightly less than the check group. Yet heifers that got field cured alfalfa responded favorably to the stilbestrol feeding.

"It would seem," Beeson concluded, "that there's something in that green plant that affects the usefulness of stilbestrol when it's fed."

Burroughs agreed as to the up-and-down response. "Our results have varied from excellent to zero," he admitted. "An average of all our tests of stilbestrol feeding on pasture show a 9% faster rate of gain and an 8% feed saving. This compares with 18% and 12% on fattening rations."

Do you have to feed a high-energy ration to get the most response?

In general, the answer is yes, the scientists agreed. However, Burroughs reported Iowa tests which indicated that stilbestrol apparently helps an animal make better use of low-cost, non-protein nitrogen such as urea. He told of the "Iowa Economy Supplement" that contains no oil meals of any kind yet has produced daily gains of about 3 pounds in three tests. The supplement ingredients cost about $50 a ton, he said, and a pound a day seems to do the job.

Any possibility of combining stilbestrol with the natural hormones?

"There may be," answered Gassner. "We have a large-scale test in which we're using a natural hormone pellet (Synovex) and feeding stilbestrol to the steers. There's a strong indication that the effect of the two may be cumulative and beneficial."

New grub killer looks best yet

LAST month FARM JOURNAL reported that the new grub treatment, ET-57, looked good in Texas and Oklahoma tests.

It looks even better now, as results are just in from four northern states and a USDA laboratory. The new grub-killing chemical, just named Viozene by the Dow Chemical Co., will probably be on the market this fall.

Here are the state-by-state reports from college scientists:

South Dakota. "We found only occasional grubs in treated animals while the untreated averaged $\frac{3}{4}$ grub per head in one herd and $2\frac{1}{2}$ grubs in the other," says Bill Rogoff. In other tests, treated cattle (using ET-57 as a bolus, capsule, mixed in feed or mixed in salt) had no grubs. There were 75 in untreated cattle.

Iowa. "We didn't find a single grub in the backs of capsule-treated cattle, but found an average of five per untreated animal," reports Earle Raun of 144 head of feedlot cattle. "We're just starting to get slaughter data, but so far it looks good," he adds.

Kansas. "Good results with ET-57 bolus or mixed in feed," reports Roger Matthew on 500 cattle in three herds. "Two animals showed up with a grub each three months after treatment. Untreated animals averaged three to four grubs in one test, 12 to 14 in the other two."

Nebraska. "Results are consistent —6 to 2 grubs per treated animal, 8 to 21 grubs in untreated animals," says Cal Jones. He used both a boling gun and drenches of the Viozene.

USDA Livestock Insect Laboratory, Kerrville, Tex. "In three years' work, grub control ranged from 75% to 100%, with an average of 90% to 95%," says R. C. Bushland.

Scientists aren't sure how the chemical works. "We don't know whether it kills grubs or just makes them crazy," Bushland tells FARM JOURNAL. "One thing's sure, it keeps 'em out of the backs of treated cattle."

Tests are under way now to see if Viozene-treated cattle will gain faster in the feedlot. FARM JOURNAL will report them when they're completed.

Will packers pay extra for grub-free cattle? They could well afford to. In a recent day's slaughter by one packer, 79% of all carcasses were infested with grubs, 29% so badly that they were classed as "grubby carcasses."

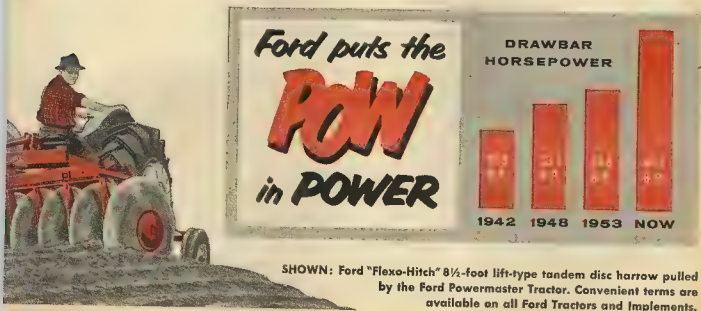

Makes Meat Juicier

Pumping a salt water solution through the arteries of a newly slaughtered steer, makes Choice-tasting beef out of a Good grade carcass.

At least that's what taste panels tell Ohio meat scientist V. R. Cahill. The reasoning is this: The salt "charges" the protein molecules on meat, makes them hold moisture more tightly. When treated meat is cooked, there's less shrinkage. Result: beef that's tender and juicier.

Penicillin-salt mix stops bloat

A NEW penicillin-salt mix has given a highly encouraging results as a control for bloat on more than 3,000 head of cattle.

There was not a single death loss on any of the 19 bloat-problem farms where the mix was fed in 1956, according to Ben Barrentine, Mississippi State College scientist. The farms were located in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

In the early spring months before starting their cattle on the antibiotic-salt mix last April, these farmers had lost 70 head from bloat.

On most farms no bloating was observed by the third day after starting the cattle on the penicillin-salt mix. Only a few scattered cases were observed during the rest of the bloat season.

The test mixture, blended by the Morton Salt Company, consisted of loose salt containing 50 milligrams (about 50,000 units) of procaine penicillin per ounce of salt. On an average, each animal ate only 7 ounce per day. All other salt was removed.

Barrentine also made a carefully-controlled test with the penicillin-salt mix at Mississippi State College. Before starting the antibiotic mix, the beef herd had been averaging 20 cases of bloat per day. On the fifth and sixth days after the penicillin-salt was started, there was only one case.

Then he stopped the antibiotic and four days later there were 17 cases of bloat!

The penicillin mixture appears to be relatively stable. Barrentine says, "You should be able to avoid any appreciable loss of penicillin effectiveness by putting out only two or three days' supply at a time in a weather-protected salt box."

Bagged samples of the mixture were tested after eight months of storage, with How Fast Can We Get Meat Hogs?

"Only one out of every six hogs we now market produces the kind of pork the housewife wants," declared scientist L. N. Hazel at Iowa State College's first annual swine breeder's short course.

"Yet if every hog raiser would use the breeding tools we now have, more than half the hogs could be the 'right' kind within five years," Hazel added.

He defined the "right" kind as a slaughter barrow that will cut out at least 50% lean cuts, measure 1.5 inches backfat at 200 pounds (reached at five months of age) and produce 100 pounds pork with 325 pounds feed.

Fortunately, Hazel explained, these characteristics are highly heritable.

One big mistake breeders frequently make is to scatter their shots and try to select for too many things at a time, reported Ralph Durham, Extension hog specialist. "The more things you breed for, the less improvement you get in the really important things."

Added researcher Hazel: "We have the breeding tools now—swine testing stations, on-farm testing programs, and breed-sponsored meat-hog certification. You can pinpoint selection with these programs, particularly if you add data from your entire herd. You have to improve gilts as well as boars."

"The cardiograph shows you have a weak heart. I'll give you my bill in three installments."

a closed barn. Warmth is fine for new lambs. But as Graydon Blank, Michigan State University sheepman explains, sheep are cold weather animals. They need fresh, dry air.

Escotts use Suffolk rams for a "vigorous, faster growing market lamb."

Why pen up sheep? Well, the Escotts farm good land. They were binning 50-bushel-an-acre barley when I was there.

"It simply doesn't make sense to run sheep on that kind of land when it can gross us $100 an acre this way, on both meadow and crop acres," adds Ken.

And besides, they have the sheep where they can watch 'em. And that's important. Marauding dogs aren't so apt to bother; you're more likely to spot an ailing sheep. They're easier to handle, and parasite losses are reduced.

Escotts don't claim that they have all the answers. For one thing, they haven't taken advantage of the strong early lamb market. Instead of March lambing, they sheared their rams late summer, bred early and lambs will start coming in the next week or two.

"Early lambs can make you $5 extra," says Illinois scientist Jack Lewis. He backs that statement with price quotations from a Dixon Springs lamb pool. Prices of the top three grades of lambs were from $5.50 to $6.50 a hundred higher on June 8 last year than on June 22.

Early lambing is easy when sheep are in confinement.

The Escott neighborhood is rolling, but the hillsides aren't too steep to farm. If they were, then raising sheep in confinement may not make much sense. Might as well have the sheep harvest the hillsides.

But with good farmland, the Escotts think the place for sheep is right in the yard. And that's where theirs are staying.

Lambs Gain Fast, Hold Grade on New Pellets

A new hormone combination pellet showed up well in lamb feeding tests just recently reported by scientists at Ohio's Agricultural Experiment Station.

Forty lambs receiving the implant—a progesterone-estradiol combination—gained 34% faster and ate 23% less feed per pound of gain than did the 40 untreated lambs.

The test product was made by Syntex Animal Products. This is the same company that received Food and Drug OK to market a lamb pellet awhile back (FARM JOURNAL, October, 1954), and then withdrew it when further tests resulted in carcass downgrading.

While the new Ohio-tested product contains the same hormones, smaller amounts were used and there was no downgrading, either on the hoof or in carcass. All 80 lambs, treated and untreated, graded the same.

The lambs averaged 70 pounds when they went into the lots; were fed a standard heavy grain ration, plus hay and protein supplement for 84 days.

Some treated lambs showed slight side effects—udder development and vulval swelling—but not enough to affect grade or gain.

There were no death losses in either group. Like cattle that have had hormone feeds on implants, the treated lambs tended to have less fat for weight.

The Ohioans also used the test hormone implants on a group of 19 suckling lambs on pasture that went on full feed after weaning.

From the time they were implanted until market, they gained 16% more than the controls.

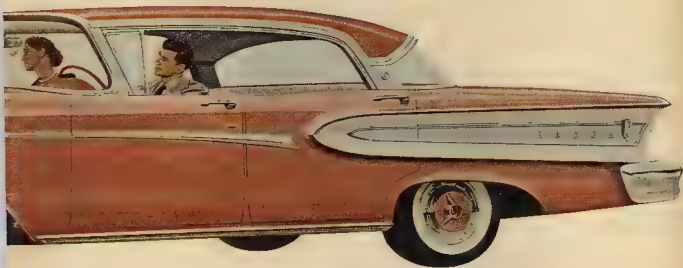

Syntex and Squibb, who are now selling Synovex steer implants, are also experimenting with even lower and cheaper hormone combinations for lambs than those used in the Ohio tests. They hope to have one OK'd by Food and Drug and on the market by next fall's lamb-feeding season.

Choice beef from corn silage

WE'VE been underrating corn silage as a fattening feed for cattle, if a South Dakota State College test can be duplicated in farm feedlots.

Scientist William McCone started with good to choice 750-pound yearlings, full-fed 'em corn silage for 180 days, without a bite of corn on the side. Only "extras" were 2½ pounds linseed oil meal daily plus free choice of a salt, limestone, bonemeal mix. Half the steers got 10 milligrams stilbestrol in their supplement; the other half got a 36-milligram stilbestrol implant.

Here's what the 10 stilbestrol-fed steers did: gained 2.44 lbs. per day at a cost of 15.1¢ per lb. And eight of the carcasses graded Choice, two Prime!

The stilbestrol implants averaged 2.47 lbs. daily gain at a cost of 12.6¢ a lb. Nine yielded Choice carcasses, one Good.

The corn silage wasn't anything super-duper either. McCone estimates the corn would have yielded about 60 bushels per acre had it been harvested for grain.

Another phase of this test points up some interesting differences as to the feeding value you get from different kinds of silos. Steers ate 87% of the silage stored in a conventional upright; only 54% of that put in a circular pile supported by picket cribbing (snow fence). Wintering beef cows ate 98% of the silage from a glass-lined, air-tight silo.

"But there's more than silage and waste involved," says McCone. "Out of the 118 tons put in the pile, there were 32 tons we couldn't account for at all except as weight lost through oxidation and fermentation. That's in addition to what the cattle wouldn't eat."

baby pigs didn't like the air-conditioned luxury. Death losses were higher the first week in the cooled stalls.

So one practical problem, say the Iowa Staters, is how to keep sows cool, but pigs warm the first week or two—and to do it economically.

Engineer T. E. Hazen believes air-conditioning units for cooling homes will have to be re-designed specifically for animal shelters.

"We've got to ventilate animal shelters to get rid of the ammonia," he says. "The result is that 70% of the air conditioner's capacity is used to cool fresh air and 30% to actually lower the temperature in the shelter just about the reverse of what we expect from a home air conditioner. Present refrigeration coils are just not designed for such a load."

No More Late-hour Sow-sitting?

The day may not be far off when you'll be able to "educate" your sows into daylight farrowing. No more long nights in the farrowing house!

Results with hormone injections at the General Mills Larro research farm point to this interesting possibility. The tests so far have been on 40 sows over four farrowings.

At the Indianola, Iowa farm, the researchers examine the sows in the morning, then inject a hormone called oxytocin into the ham of those due to farrow that night.

It starts the farrowing process within a few hours.

Oxytocin is a hormone normally secreted by a sow during farrowing. "We're trying, through injections, to speed up the release of the hormone or to supplement the sow's natural supply to bring about quicker, easier farrowing," says researcher Ronald Bloss.

The General Mills tests jibe closely with previous studies at the University of Missouri. Here scientists injected 36 sows that had milk available in their teats. Within an average 3½ hours, 30 had delivered their first pigs and in 2.2 hours had completed their farrowings.

A group of 43 "control" sows averaged half again as long between the time their first pigs arrived until they completed farrowing.

"As a result of the Missouri tests and our own findings, we're hopeful we may be able to eliminate sow-sitting during the sleeping hours," says Bloss.

One problem is timing. Apparently the injection must be made no sooner than 24 hours before normal delivery. The hormone doesn't help if given too early or too late.

"The presence of milk in the udder isn't a 100% guide," says Bloss. "But most experienced hog men can do pretty well at spotting the proper time."

Another thing the scientists haven't fully nailed down is proper dosage. It may even vary from sow to sow.

"We're hoping that we can get timing and dosage pin-pointed so we can hit at least 75% of the time," says Bloss.

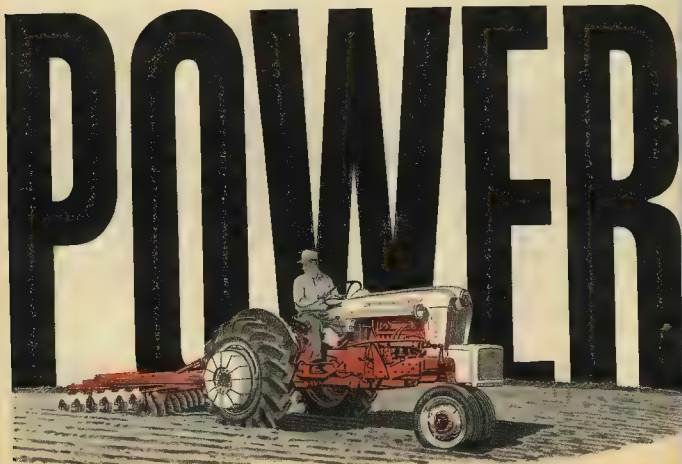

That'll be something when they do! And it shouldn't be expensive—probably 15¢ to 25¢ per sow.

Bull Performance Test

Texas cattlemen this month chalked up another first!

They started a bull-performance test that is the first to be sponsored and promoted by major breed associations. Backing the test are the Texas Angus, Hereford, Polled Hereford and Shorthorn breed associations.

Also, this probably is the first time for a major livestock show to push performance testing.

FEED & GRAIN HANDLER... ONLY $25!

Hours of back-breaking labor and time are saved with this ingenious grain handler invented by W. C. Eoff, who farms near Hamlin, Texas.

"I built the machine in my farm shop for only $25, from a discarded combine and the front axle of an old car," he says. "It consists of a grain bin, power take-off and unloading augur. I find it invaluable in 'roading' grain from the combine to the barn—also in filling self-feeders."

Mr. Eoff has high praise for Texaco products, including Advanced Custom-Made Havoline Motor Oil that wear-proofs truck and tractor engines for added power and longer engine life. He also likes the dependable, on-time deliveries of Texaco Consignee O. D. Roland.

GOLDEN FIVE for '58

PRESENTED HERE are five typical offerings of 1958 automobiles from our five car Divisions in celebration of the fiftieth year of General Motors.

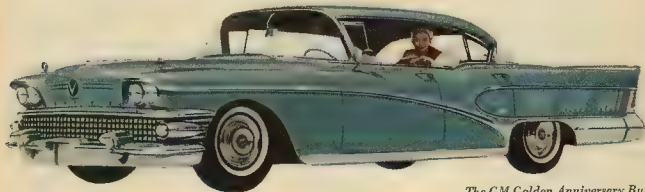

They are automobiles that—to be worthy of this event—were dedicated to surpass their own traditions.

And, while each maintains its own personality, all five cars benefit—as does the public—from the combined ingenuity of their own engineering staffs and the styling, research, development and testing resources of General Motors.

From the General Motors Technical Center comes a steady flow of advanced engineering and design developments—basic betterments in transmissions and engines—new ideas in comfort and safety features—new concepts in styling and appointments.

It is this General Motors leadership which has created such outstanding values in the cars now ready for your inspection in the showrooms of GM dealers.

They offer you, we believe, the widest selection and the most satisfying motoring to be found today.

FROM THE PROGRESS OF THE PAST...THE PROMISE OF THE FUTURE

PULLS like a

SHORT-STROKE ENGINE

Ford leads in advanced tractor engine design. More power with each revolution of the engine—less friction and wear. Ford's large-bore, short-stroke design makes the difference!

AUTOMATIC TRACTION TRANSFER

In heavy plowing, for example, up to a half ton of ground-gripping pressure is automatically added to the rear tractor wheels by the pull of the plow. More traction when you need it!

LIGHTNING-FAST GOVERNOR

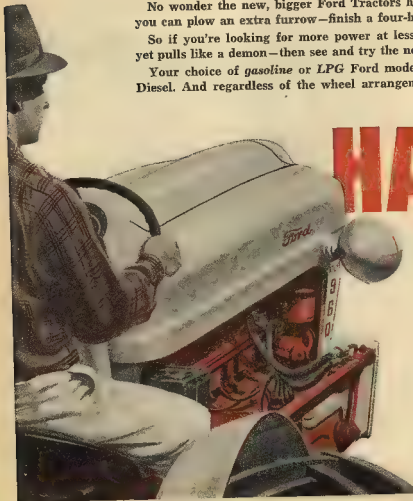

The Ford Tractor gets a head start on heavy pulls because the governor responds with lightning speed. Less engine drag-down before the governor responds—steady power, instantly!

You'll find a bonus of power in new Ford Tractors that you have never experienced before. That's because new Ford Tractors deliver up to twice the power of previous models.

No wonder the new, bigger Ford Tractors have power to spare. In many conditions you can plow an extra furrow—finish a four-hour job in an hour less.

So if you're looking for more power at less cost—power that handles like a dream yet pulls like a demon—then see and try the new power-packed Ford Tractors!

Your choice of gasoline or LPG Ford models—plus the powerful Fordson Major Diesel. And regardless of the wheel arrangement you prefer, Ford has it. See them!

HANDLES

HYDRAULIC CONTROL

The result of 18 years of Ford development, it has been field-proved in more than a million Ford-built tractors. See and feel the difference of Ford's live-action control, constant draft control, traction transfer, and much more!

How tough could YOU make it for this GMC 4-wheel drive?

GOT a wood lot that's rugged going? Some marshy land to claw through? An ornery hill or so you have to haul stuff over?

Take it from Cal Boies, Sheriff of Maricopa County, Arizona: Get yourself a GMC 4-wheel drive!

HIS GMC hauls a load of radio equipment over just about the meanest 16-mile stretch of mountain trail in the West. It climbs where a horse couldn't go—up grades that get as steep as 65%—over boulder-strewn passes—to a transmitting station 4300 feet up.

"Hasn't even breathed hard yet," says the Sheriff.

You'll find a GMC 4-wheel drive the handiest piece of equipment you've got. With a few accessories, you can pull stumps, drill post holes or wells, stretch fence, pump water, hoist anything.

YOU'LL get clearance on high-crowned roads, full traction in muck or deep snow, and—with a single lever—move into full road speeds in two-wheel drive, and ride like a king.

You can see it's a handsome truck. Well, the price is just as attractive—as your GMC dealer will show you. Try one out!

There is a 1957 truck engine built for every particular hauling need. From Pickup to Big Job, new short-stroke design pulls bigger pay loads, ups gas savings. And in our cars, you'll find the power to carry you anywhere quickly, safely.

Every member of the Ford Farm Family benefits from Ford Motor Company's more than half century of manufacturing experience. Each shares the same ruggedness, the same dependability, the same ability to do the job at low cost.

Announcing the greatest advance in balers in fifteen years!

The new HAY FLOW-

This is FLOW-ACTION!

Exclusive new operating principle developed by New Holland and found only on the new HAYLINER 68. It's the best friend a leaf ever had! No sharp corners to turn, no twisting and turning, no wadding—just a gentle, flowing action from pickup to bale chamber.

Another first from the Leader in Grassland Farming

Engine-powered (above) or P.T.O., the new HAYLINER 68 gives you big-baler capacity at small-baler price.

LINER 68 with -ACTION!

Have you seen the new way to bale hay? Never before has there been anything like it—the New Holland HAYLINER 68!

Completely new from hitch to chute, the HAYLINER 68 gives you big-baler capacity with the low price and handling ease of much smaller balers. How's it done? The secret's in FLOW-ACTION. It's an entirely new way of moving hay from field to finished bale. It hardly disturbs a leaf. No auger. No wad-board. Just a smooth, gentle flowing action.

The HAYLINER 68 handles your hay less because it has fewer moving parts. It puts the most feed value into every bale.

And look at the way the bale is built—square, cleanly sliced. Easy to stack. Easy to feed out.

You don't have to wait until summer to see FLOW-ACTION in action. Your dealer can demonstrate it right now in his showroom or on his lot. Hurry down today! New Holland Machine Co. Division of Sperry Rand Corp., New Holland, Pa.

NEW MACHINES feed granules into the row just above the seed (also see photos, page 34). Just $\frac{1}{2}$ pound of insecticide boosts yields 7 to 50 bu. per acre.

How to kill rootworms

THIS spring, you have a wide choice of ways to use one of the Corn Belt's fastest-growing ideas—putting chemical in the soil to stop root-chewing insects.

"Farmers treated 12% of Iowa's corn acreage last year, and they've come up with several ways to do the job," says J. H. Lilly, the scientist who pioneered the idea on a few acres in 1951.

From two-thirds to three-fourths of the Iowa farmers who treated used a fertilizer-insecticide mixture. Most of the rest used sprays, but the new granules seem to be gaining ground.

To broadcast the recommended pound of aldrin or heptachlor per acre, set a sprayer on the tractor ahead of the disk, or mount wide fan nozzles right on the front of the disk, suggests Lilly.

He thinks that the trend is toward row application because it takes only half as much material to do the job.

Some of the granules are going into insecticide-starter mixes, but with the swing to putting starter fertilizer to the side and below the seed (FARM JOURNAL, March 1957) more and more farmers are using separate granule hoppers (see photo). These machines meter the insecticide into a thin band just above the seed.

Spray nozzles hooked behind the planter shoes do about the same job. Some farmers mount the sprayer tanks on the planter tractor where the extra weight of the water is easier to haul.

On listed corn, a sprayer nozzle that covers a strip 24 inches wide just behind the moldboard and ahead of the packing wheels gives good protection.

If you're planting sod ground, and plan to keep the field in corn for three years, you may want to boost insecticide rates, says Lilly. Two pounds per acre broadcast will knock out just about all the insects, and you'll get enough carry-over effect to keep rootworms under control during the second and third years.

FORD PUTS THE

You'll find a bonus of power in today's Ford Tractors that you have never experienced before. The secret is in Ford's power-packed Red Tiger engines. They deliver up to twice the power of many previous models. That's why today's Ford Powermaster Tractors can pull 3 plows with power to spare. Yes, they actually have 3-4 plow power!

Shown here is 3-4 plow Powermaster Ford Wide-Adjustable Front Axle Row Crop Tractor with new Ford Moldboard Plow.

Thick trefoil on the right was seeded alone, then sprayed with dalapon to keep down weeds. Trefoil at left was seeded with oats.

HERE'S an idea: Seed birdsfoot trefoil without a nurse crop, then spray away the weeds so the trefoil has a free hand.

"We get stands that knock your eyes out," says J. M. Scholl, Iowa State College agronomist, "—thick stands that make more than a ton of dry hay per acre the year they're seeded."

That's good news. Birdsfoot trefoil has made a big name for itself as a long-lasting, bloat-proof pasture legume. But it often takes two or three years for a stand to really get going.

"That's because trefoil runs a poor second if it has to compete with either a nurse crop or weeds," says Scholl. "When we seed it alone, and get rid of the weeds with a chemical, we get alalfa-like stands the first year."

Two chemicals—TCA and dalapon—gave equally good results in Iowa State's four-year tests. Eight pounds of TCA per acre, sprayed on right after the trefoil was seeded, keeps down the grassy weeds and doesn't seem to hurt the trefoil.

That good-looking stand of trefoil in the photo at the left was sprayed with four pounds of dalapon per acre about a month after seeding.

"Plants in the sprayed strip were three times as tall in September as those in the un-sprayed strip where we clipped to keep down the weeds after we took off the oats," Scholl reported at the agronomy meetings in Cincinnati.

These chemicals knock out only the grassy weeds. Broad-leaf weeds still have to be mowed once or twice. "This year, we're going to try mixing a new broad-leaf killer called 2,4-DB with the dalapon," says Scholl. (FARM JOURNAL, February 1957, page 54.)

The Food and Drug Administration has not approved TCA or dalapon for use on forage crops. But the scientists hope that approval will come soon.

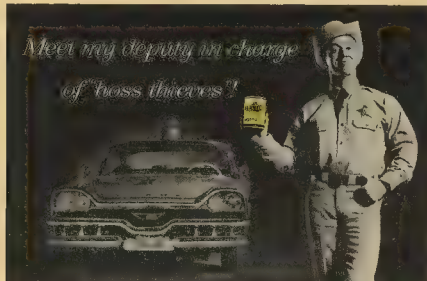

"We never really knew what a good stand of trefoil was until we tried a chemical 'nurse crop,'" says Scholl.

New Germination Test Is Quicker, Better

Scientists have come up with a new way to test seeds for germination that's both quicker and better than the "count-the-sprouts" method.

They soak the seeds in water containing a chemical called "TZ." If a seed is live and vigorous, certain parts of it change color within a few hours. If a seed is dead, they don't.

It takes a trained person to interpret exactly what these color changes mean, so it's not likely that you'll run the test yourself. But seed testing laboratories will probably use it.

"Besides being quicker, the new 'TZ' test is also more accurate because it permits us to separate the 'really good' seeds from the weaker ones," says R. P. Moore, North Carolina State College researcher.

Explains Moore: "These weaklings usually sprout in the laboratory, but they don't have enough vigor to send up a plant under field conditions."

The test also tells the scientists how old a seed is and whether it has been damaged during harvesting. The chemical used, called "TZ" for short, is 2,3,5-triphenyl tetrazolium.

The Quick-Test Chemical Seed Laboratory, Box 5395, Raleigh, N.C., is using the new test on several crops, including corn, small grains, clovers, fescue. Testing fees range from $1.50 to $3.

Moore doesn't expect the new TZ test to completely replace sprout testing. "Rather, it will be used by farmers and seedsmen who need to know exactly what they can expect their seed to do after it's planted," he says.

Short on Feed? Try A Sudan-soybean Mix

Sweet sudan grass and soybeans team up into a mighty good silage and pasture crop, say Illinois farmers.

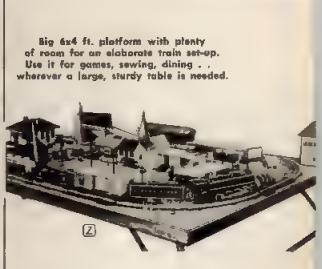

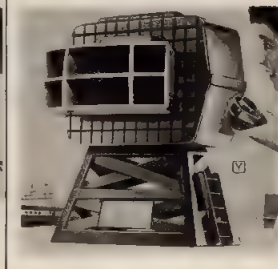

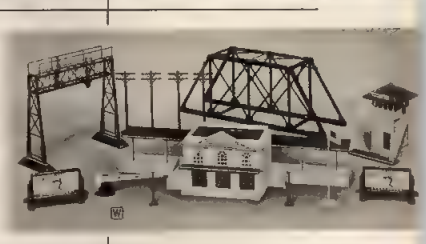

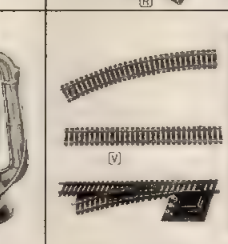

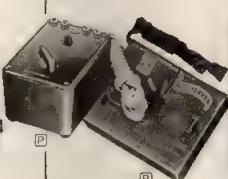

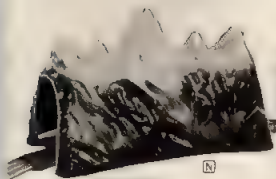

Their fields make 10 to 12 tons of silage an acre, and furnish heavy-deep, late-summer pasture besides.

These farmers drill a small, hairy-type soybean named Ebony on well-fertilized soil—about 1½ bushels per acre. Two or three weeks later, they pull a trick that really makes neighbors stop their tractors—drill crosswise. Only this time they seed 25 lbs. of sweet sudan grass per acre.

Then the race starts. The soybeans try to keep up with the sudan in a fight for sunlight, and that's quite a job. They get up to five feet tall by early pod stage, or when sudan heads push out of the boot.

"That's the time to cut, or chop," says Dan Schrock, fieldman for a Peoria dairy. Leave a 10-inch stubble, he suggests, and the sudan will make a fast come-back for pasture. End

THAT's a big day's work in any farmer's book! It's more, perhaps, than you're ever likely to set for yourself. Yet, it's easy for New Holland's mighty "800"—the world's fastest forage harvester. Even if you're putting up 10 tons of silage to the acre, your "800" chops at barely half its 45-ton-per-hour capacity!

This tremendous capacity also means the "800" has plenty of power and stamina for the toughest jobs. It will chew through wind-blattened corn or a tangled growth of broadcast sorghum and sudan grass—and keep right on going. With the great New Holland

"800", you'll get your chopping jobs done fast and without trouble. And that means—you'll save money!

Wide choice of attachments: 1- or 2-row corn heads, 6- or 8-foot direct cut and 6-foot windrow. See your dealer today! New Holland Machine Company Division of Sperry Rand Corporation, New Holland, Pa.

ALUMINUM BOATS — A NEW CONCEPT IN PERFORMANCE

OBC

A unique structural design and hull process is responsible for the superior performance and appearance of Bowman Aluminum Boats. The exclusive combination chine introduces a new conception of aluminum boat performance. Unusually fast and quick planing. Engineered to eliminate any tendency to slip, trip, skid, or porpoise. Wide, deep, full-sized boats built to big water specifications. Heavier than usual aluminum, of a special heat treated alloy that lends itself to the Bowman Process, produces boats suitable for rough water and rugged usage. A quiet ride and a bottom free from undulation and ripples is produced by the use of heavy extruded aluminum bilge stringers. Extra heavy specially designed aluminum extrusions are used for keels, rub rails, stringers and spray rails. These rugged thick-wall extrusions impart a sturdiness that can not be duplicated with any other type of aluminum boat construction—they are strong enough to take the punishment of the big motors; further, they prevent hull "wear-through" at points subject to abrasion. Inasmuch as wood is not affected by temperature changes, it is used for gunwales and seats to provide maximum comfort. This wood is chemically impregnated and is painted for appearance only. Maximum buoyancy is obtained through the use of properly designed individual air tanks—a Bowman air tank has 27% more flotation than less expensive foamed plastic material. Tanks are placed above the floor and away from the sides for complete protection. Built-in self bailing plug. Freedom from maintenance, leakage, rot, and deterioration. Equipped with sturdy stern lift handles and bow handle. Beautiful red enameled decks. Inside bottom coated with special safety non-skid finish.

ALUMINUM BOATS — A NEW CONCEPT IN PERFORMANCE

OBC

A unique structural design and hull process is responsible for the superior performance and appearance of Bowman Aluminum Boats. The exclusive combination chine introduces a new conception of aluminum boat performance. Unusually fast and quick planing. Engineered to eliminate any tendency to slip, trip, skid, or porpoise. Wide, deep, full-sized boats built to big water specifications. Heavier than usual aluminum, of a special heat treated alloy that lends itself to the Bowman Process, produces boats suitable for rough water and rugged usage. A quiet ride and a bottom free from undulation and ripples is produced by the use of heavy extruded aluminum bilge stringers. Extra heavy specially designed aluminum extrusions are used for keels, rub rails, stringers and spray rails. These rugged thick-wall extrusions impart a sturdiness that can not be duplicated with any other type of aluminum boat construction—they are strong enough to take the punishment of the big motors; further, they prevent hull "wear-through" at points subject to abrasion. Inasmuch as wood is not affected by temperature changes, it is used for gunwales and seats to provide maximum comfort. This wood is chemically impregnated and is painted for appearance only. Maximum buoyancy is obtained through the use of properly designed individual air tanks—a Bowman air tank has 27% more flotation than less expensive foamed plastic material. Tanks are placed above the floor and away from the sides for complete protection. Built-in self bailing plug. Freedom from maintenance, leakage, rot, and deterioration. Equipped with sturdy stern lift handles and bow handle. Beautiful red enameled decks. Inside bottom coated with special safety non-skid finish.

NEW CHRIS-CRAFT SEA SKIFFS

FAST! DRY! SEAWORTHY!

Yes, new Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs for 1937 are the finest round-bilge, lapstrake boats ever built — and the longer you own one, the more you'll like and respect it.

For, the Sea Skiff is a practical, versatile, all-purpose boat — with fast response and handling ease for water sports, fishing, and cruising — plus the power for heavy-duty utility work.

New Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs are exceptionally watertight, too — thanks to the exclusive Chris-Craft Sea Skiff sealer — a synthetic-rubber-based sealer that is a strong adhesive, as well. Elastic enough to allow strokes to "work," it resists the effects of water, weathering, fuel, and oil! It is used in all seams and joints, from keel to seat rises in 18-ft., 22-ft., and 26-ft. open models; from keel to sheer in 30-ft. open, 26-ft., 30-ft., 35-ft., and 40-ft. cruiser models.

Standard equipment includes sturdy skeg to protect the bottom; bronze shoe to protect the propeller on 18-ft., 22-ft., and 26-ft. open models; dependable worm-and-pinion, rod-to-rudder steering; ventilated bilge; fuel tank vented overboard; water-cooled copper exhaust pipe, all models — to name a few.

A wide selection of optional equipment — ventilating or nonventilating windshields (open models), folding canvas or permanent tops, and other desirable equipment . . . plus a choice of attractive hull colors — let you outfit your new Sea Skiff to your individual boating purposes.

Compare new Chris-Craft Sea Skiffs with any other boat of its type, and you'll see why Chris-Craft is a better round bilge, lapstrake boat than any other built!

Dress-A-Doll Contest

HOW MANY DOLLS DID YOU SELL?

Because women love to dress dolls, the first exciting dress-a-doll contest sponsored by Doll Bodies, Inc. established new sales records last year in stores from coast to coast.

BIG PROFITS FOR YOU— FROM JANUARY TO OCTOBER

When You Need Sales MOST!

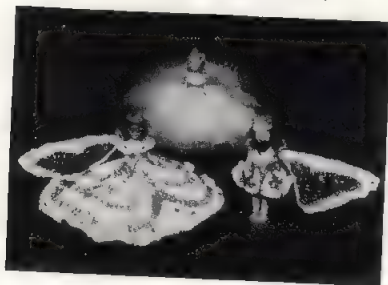

Why wait for Christmas?—Start selling dolls now. This dress-it-yourself trend among women and girls is a powerful stimulant to undressed doll sales. "Lingerie Lou" undressed dolls range in retail from 39¢ to $1.35 in the 7½" to 11½" sizes. Each doll has a colorful contest circular and entry blank attached to it to activate impulse sales.

STORES BUILD EXCITING DISPLAYS TO TAP OFF-SEASON DOLL MARKET

Enthusiastic dealers supported the contest with window and counter displays—Result: hundreds of thousands of dolls sold more than ten thousand contest entries! Don't be left out in the 2nd contest starting now—order your stock promptly. Start selling immediately.

Mrs. Ola Bourgeois of New Orleans, whose "Mardi Gras" tabeau won first prize, was one of the thousands of contestants from all over the country. She is a grandmother and delights in dressing dolls for the pleasure of her two daughters and two granddaughters. She was flown to New York to receive her prize at the special press party held at the Belmont Plaza Hotel.

Bowman

ALUMINUM BOATS — A NEW CONCEPT IN PERFORMANCE

A unique structural design and hull process is responsible for the superior performance and appearance of Bowman Aluminum Boats. The exclusive combination chine introduces a new conception of aluminum boat performance. Unusually fast and quick planing. Engineered to eliminate any tendency to slip, trip, sid, or porpoise. Wide, deep, full-rized boats built to big water specifications. Heavier than usual aluminum, of a special heat-treated alloy that lends itself to the Bowman Process, produces boats suitable for rough water and rugged usage. A quiet ride and a bottom free from undulation and ripples is produced by the use of heavy extruded aluminum bilge stringers. Extra heavy specially designed aluminum extrusions are used for keels, rub rails, stringers and spray rails. These rugged thick-wall extrusions impart a sturdiness that can not be duplicated with any other type of aluminum boat construction—they are strong enough to take the punishment of the big motors; further, they prevent hull "wear-through" at points subject to abrasion. Inasmuch as wood is not affected by temperature changes, it is used for gunwales and seats to provide maximum comfort. This wood is chemically impregnated and is painted for appearance only. Maximum buoyancy is obtained through the use of properly designed individual air tanks—a Bowman air tank has 27% more flotation than less expensive foamed plastic material. Tanks are placed above the floor and away from the sides for complete protection. Built-in self bailing plug. Freedom from maintenance, leakage, rot, and deterioration. Equipped with sturdy stem lift handles and bow handle. Beautiful red enameled decks. Inside bottom coated with special safety non-slip finish.

LEAK-FREE PLYGLAS RUNABOUTS AND SEMI-RUNABOUTS

Sensational FIBER-GLASS and MARINE PLYWOOD construction. FIBER-GLASS covering over all seams and joints, thus molding a ONE-PIECE LEAK-FREE boat, always "ready for use"—no soaking; no caulking; no upkeep of any kind. CHEMICALLY impregnated—painting is for appearance only. Extremely fast full "V" bottom which permits tight turns at high speed and gives amazing performance. Natural flotation for maximum safety. Solid core resin-bonded marine plywood; 3/8" 5-ply bottom with 1/4" sides, 9-ply 1 3/8" HEAVY DUTY transom supported by oversize quarter and transom knees—trouble-free performance with the larger motors. BRASS fastened for salt water.

BEAUTIFUL MATCHED DARK RED MAHOGANY decks trimmed and protected by rugged vinyl plastic coaming in attractive cream color. LUSTROUS white topside, green bottom, and red splash rails. HIGHLY POLISHED bow lift handle and bow winch ring. Inside coated with new super-tough, durable plastic finish for long lasting beauty.

INCOMPARABLE BOWMAN DESIGN bottom gives the softest, most pleasant spray-free ride ever experienced. The perfected full "V" Bowman design eliminates any tendency to slip, trip, skid or porpoise. Practically non-tippable. Unusually fast and quick planing.

MAIBU—Big, beautiful leak-free runabout built for high speed and level riding. Ideally suited for the largest outboard motors. Recommended for coastal and other "big-water" use.

MERCURY

Twelve Mercury outboard motor models from 6 to 60 hp are announced by the Kiekhaefer Corporation, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin.

Mercury's all new Mark 75, a high-styled, six-cylinder power plant, rated at 60 hp is the world's most powerful production outboard. Mark 10 is a new model in the 10 hp fast-fisherman range.

Mark 6 is rated at 5.9 hp. Next in line is the new Mark 10; followed by the Mark 25 and 25 Electric, rated at 20 hp; the Mark 30 and 30 Electric, rated at 30 hp; the Mark 55 and 55 Electric, rated at 40 hp; and finally the Mark 75. Mercury will produce three 1957 competition models—the Mark 30H, Mark 55H and Mark 75H.

The new Mark 75, solves the problem of providing single-engine outboard power for big outboard cruisers and runabouts. Beneath its stainless steel cowl, the Mark 75 boasts a six cylinder-in-line all die-cast engine of 59.4 cubic inches piston displacement. It will be produced in electric starting models only, but carry a manually operated starter as a safety feature.

An entirely new motor is the Mercury Mark 10 with glide angle underwater structure which goes over stumps, rocks, etc. All controls are in handle.

A generator keeps a 12-volt battery fully charged and permits the use of horns, lights, radios, electric bilge pumps and other accessories. Single-lever control makes the big power plant easy to operate. Throttle, forward and direct reverse are all on one fingertip remote control.

The Mark 10 has been designed with the busy fisherman in mind; it provides forward, neutral, reverse and speed control all in the tiller handle. A Speed-Troll Switch makes possible day-long trolling at steady, slow speeds.

Other features include deep-barbed exhaust, released through the propeller hub; load torque safety spring transmission to banish shear pin worries, one-piece removable cowl; fully weedless lower unit and a pick-up latch that locks the engine in a tilted position for safe launching.

Rated at 60 hp, Mercury's Mark 75 is a 6-cylinder in-line motor of two-cycle design to propel even the largest outboard craft.

Mark 10's rakish styling will make a hit with the younger set for use on today's light, fancy hulls. Its estimated top speed is 26 mph.

The Mark 10 and 75, as well as all of Mercury's other 1957 models, will continue to feature anti-friction ball and roller bearings on every turning point within the engine. Waterproof magnetos and waterproofed spark plugs are also on all models. Unique one-piece gear cases, that seal the lubricant in and keep the water out continue to be standard equipment, and every model is equipped with a propeller safety clutch that eliminates shear pins. All 10, 20, 30, 40 and 60 hp models are equipped with Dyna-Flow engine suspension that isolates engine vibration and noise from the boat and eases stress on boat transoms.

A fishing motor, Scott-Atwater's 5 hp model has an automatic bailer, complete gear shaft and separate fuel tank as features

SCOTT-ATWATER

There are nine motors in Scott-Atwater's 1957 line, the biggest a 40 hp model. Radical design changes, a new fuel system that provides gasoline savings up to 34% and novel color treatments are outstanding features. Design work was executed by Raymond Loewy Associates, Inc.

The most expensive motor in the line is the Royal Scott. This new model has as standard equipment, in addition to all other features of the regular 40 hp models, several previously unavailable items. Among these are turn-key starting without priming, a "personalization plate" on which the owner's name will be engraved by Scott-Atwater, and an electric fuel pump. In addition, the electric-starting 40 hp Royal Scott has a platinum and gold color scheme; a 12-volt battery system; generator; automatic bailer; forward, reverse and neutral-shift; separate fuel tank and remote control connections. A speed control dial on the power-head replaces twist-grip control.

Scott-Atwater's Royal Scott has radical design changes, a new fuel system, 12-volt ignition and an engraved personalization plate.

The Royal Scott as well as other Scott-Atwater 40 hp motors—also has a new fuel system, which saves up to 34% on gasoline. This development is similar to fuel feed systems used by the automobile industry. It is based on a jet through which additional fuel is fed to the carburetor when the motor throttle is turned to open position. When the motor is throttled back to either the cruising or closed-throttle position, the extra jet automatically is closed and the motor operates at maximum economy.

Color matching of boats and motors will be easier because of a new color treatment. Lower units, except that of the Royal Scott, are white. Hoods for the 40, 16, 10, and 7.5-hp motors are available in red, white, mahogany, blue-green and gray. Hoods are made of sound-deadening Fiberglas and are interchangeable so they can be removed in a few

1957 OUTBOARD MOTORS

EVINRUDE

Evinrude Motors, Milwaukee, has a nine-motor line, ranging from three to 35 hp. Forty-three refinements and innovations are to be found in the '57 motors.

Three new 35 horsepower units head the newcomers. Two of these, the Lark and a Big Twin, are electric-starting with generators as optional equipment. All three show an increase of five hp over the 1956 units.

Brooks Stevens, Milwaukee, designer of the entire line, has retained the traditional "Evinrude blue" as the predominant color for the motors. The Evinrude signature appears in a script and the motor cowings are finished in highly-enamelled off-whites, charcoal, blue and gray.

The motors and their salient features are.

Producing 35 OBC certified hp at 4500 rpm, all three Big Twins are vastly improved engines that can give speeds from trolling to more than 35 mph.

For easier hand-starting, the rope-starting model has compression relief chambers in the cylinder head which makes it easier to pull the engine through the compression stroke.

All the Big Twins have the new slip clutch propeller and a newly developed air silencer which brings more power and more uniform carburetion. In addition, the fuel filter has been moved from the bottom of the carburetor and placed on the side of the powerhead, making it more accessible.

The weed cutter removes the age-old hazard of weed and line entanglement. In addition, the Big Twin prop has been redesigned and has a higher pitch.

A new pinion bearing has been designed for the three 35 hp motors which makes it possible to use three anti-friction bearings.

The Big Twin Electric Starting motor incorporates all the new features of the Big Twin rope-starting unit with the additional electrical improvements.

A new starter motor has been designed employing 12 volts in the same space as previously used six volts, making it easier to start engine. There is a new electrical plug-in connector, for easy removal of the motor from the boat.

The generator—sold as an accessory for the 35 hp motor only and therefore optional—comes as a completely assembled kit and is engineered to be installed easily by the dealer. Rated at 12 volts with an output of 10 amperes continuously, it is capable of charging a low battery quickly.

It is equipped with a current and voltage regulator which prevents over-charging of the battery as in automobiles.

Two fuses come with the kit. A 20 amp fuse for charging and power takeoff and three amp fuse to protect the field circuit. For simplicity in wiring, running lights, cabin lights, radio, etc., there are two terminal posts on the bottom side of the voltage regulator cover—which replaces the junction box—which may be used for power takeoff. In that way all current draw is registered through the ammeter.

Evinrude electric have a completely new junction box assembly requiring no wiring when installing and containing a new 12-volt solenoid switch. It comes all pre-wired ready to attach to the boat.

The 35 hp Lark is Evinrude's deluxe motor with electric starting. It is distinctive in design and color, has covered controls.

The deluxe model in the line, the Lark, includes all the technical features of the Big Twin electric including the use of generator. Color-wise, the Lark makes aqua-white, gray and chrome—making this unit blend with all of today's colorful hulls. The names "Evinrude" and "Lark" are chrome plated brass stampings. The face door, which covers the starter handle and all control knobs, is a die casting.

Now the Fastwin, available in both rope and electric starting models and the light heavyweight of the line, has grown to 18 hp OBC certified, at 4500 rpm.

Evinrude quiet is maintained despite the higher horsepower and the new slip clutch propeller is used as also is the weed cutter. The idling stop feature which was used only on the Big Twin in the '56 line is now added to the Fastwins. In order to prevent unexpected cutting out, the idling stop is set at minimum position. The engine is then stopped by choking.

The electric starting Fastwin incorporates all the technical improvements of the rope-starting 18 hp unit—and uses the same 12 volt starter as on the Big Twin electric, including the new starter and choke push-button panel.

An electrical plug-in connector, similar to, though smaller than that on the Big Twin is used and does not contain generator wiring.

The Sportwin develops 10 hp at 4000 rpm, is a versatile motor combining portability with power and is used on a wide variety of utilities and runabouts. Many of the Big Twin and Fastwin features are included in the Sportwin, such as the slip clutch propeller, the improved prop, weed cutter and idling stop.

The Fleetwin at 4000 rpm produces 7.5 OBC certified hp. Weighing 59

Evinrude's light-heavyweight, the 18 hp Fastwin, now has the idling stop previously limited to Big Twins that prevents cut-outs.

seconds to completely change the color scheme. Scott-Aiwater dealers will carry a stock of colored hoods from which customers may select one to match their boats. The 5- and 3.6-hp models will have a blue-green hood with white lower unit.

Higher compression ratio, bigger exhaust and intake ports, new reed boxes, silver-plated bearing cages on connecting rods, re-designed fuel pump, and a stronger and lighter boat bracket are changes on all 40 hp models.

Electric starting 40 hp models feature a new 12-volt electrical system with generator. Other features of standard and electric starting models are automatic bailer, complete shift, separate fuel tank and remote control connections.

The 16 hp motor has a new 12-volt electrical system for electric starting models, a re-designed carrying handle and new starter knob. It also has automatic bailing, complete shift, separate gas tank, snap-off Fiberglass hood, and remote control connections.

Completely re-designed, the 10 hp model features improved carburetion; and new main adjustment, idle and starter knobs. The motor, which also has a new carburetor silencer, features automatic bailing, complete shift, snap-off Fiberglass hood and separate fuel tank.

Increased compression is provided in the 7.5 hp motor. It is completely re-sized, has new main adjustment, starter and idle knobs; and a new carburetor silencer. Other features are automatic bailing, complete shift, snap-off Fiberglass hood and separate fuel tank.

The hood of the 5 hp model has been re-designed and a tilt stop has been added to provide easier handling. Automatic bailer, complete shift and separate fuel tank are other features.

Smallest in the line is a 3.6 hp model. It has a new steering handle and a new carrying handle. Carburetion has been improved.

Design improvements in Montgomery Ward's Sea King line from 3 to 25 hp include idler adjustments and slip clutches to avoid breaking shear pins.

Left: Oliver's 6 hp motor has a tilting adjustment that permits changing motor angle from within boat.

Right: The 35 hp motor with portable powerhead, electric starting and generator.

OLIVER

Three improved and thoroughly tested outboard motors including an all-new 35 hp engine will highlight Oliver Outboard Motor line for 1957. These motors, available in 6, 16, and 35 hp models, encompass a wide power range to provide boating enthusiasts with a size and style ideally suited to any boating requirement.

Special emphasis has been placed on extreme simplicity of design and providing built-in ease of handling and maintenance. Leading the horsepower class is the Oliver 35 hp outboard. Features include an easily removable powerhead, automotive-type poppet valves, special new "Tilt-Matic" motor-angle adjustment, full forward-neutral-reverse shift, and standard 12-volt electrical system... complete with battery, generator, and 4-field starter.

These features have been combined to produce a motor that is extremely quiet in use, that provides a definite advantage in fuel consumption, and that provides high torque power at low rpm's. The increased torque obtained makes the "35" especially desirable for use in towing water skiers and for powering heavy boats or outboard cruisers.

A principal "big motor" feature that has been incorporated into the recently announced Oliver 16 hp motor is the availability of optional electric starting. Other features include: full forward-neutral-reverse shift, simplified and centralized controls, fool-proof pull-type choke, Tip-a-Lever carburetor adjustment, twist-grip throttle with new and exclusive speed indicator that is always visible, and improved silencing accomplished primarily through precision engineering.

Oliver engineers are stressing the importance of built-in safety features. Even the 6 hp motor, considered a small motor in these days of ever-increasing horsepower. Foremost among these safety devices is the exclusive "Tilt-Matic" adjustment that permits changing of motor angle safely and easily from inside the boat—completely eliminating the need for the operator to reach around the motor behind the transom. A mere twist of the handle at the front of the motor changes the motor angle forward or backward as desired.

Other features include: pull starter with automatic rewind, aircraft-type Bendix Scintilla magnetos, twist-grip throttle control, remote fuel tank, full forward-neutral-reverse shift, Dura-Drive lower unit, and improved silencing.

WEST BEND

Bigger horsepower with bright color combinations are among the many developments announced by West Bend for its '57 outboards.

West Bend's fleet of five includes the 30, 12, 8 and 6 hp deluxe models, and an air-cooled 2 hp motor, aptly named the Shrimp.

New 1957 color schemes presented for the deluxe models consist of a Jamaica Tan lower unit with a choice of Indian copper, sun yellow, reef gray or Jamaica tan snap-on fiberglass hood. A plastic three-tone medallion completes the styling.

There are striking new names, too, like the 30 hp Shark, 12 hp Barracuda, 8 hp Muskie and the 6 hp Pike.

The West Bend 30 hp motor is now offered with a choice of either a manual starting model or electric starting model with a 12-volt electrical system. An improved magneto mounting and control has been incorporated into the 30.

A new feature on the 30 is a spring-loaded throttle stop for positive maneuvering and docking speeds. Optional remote controls for all deluxe models have been re-designed to provide "feather-touch" effort and sensitivity.

All deluxe models feature the full-view dashboard with grouped starter, throttle, choke and shift controls. An indirect pull, 5-to-1 reduction starter in low level position enables easier starting without motor tilt.

West Bend's smallest motor, the 2 hp Shrimp, is featured as a children's motor, as an auxiliary motor for sailboats, or for shallow fishing. This air-cooled 29-pounder runs two hours on its self-contained fuel. It has an Indian Copper and Jamaica Tan color scheme.

pounds it performs from a very slow troll to 17 mph, depending on hull design and load. Completely restyled for '57, it also includes the weed cutter feature.

The Fisherman produces 5.5 OBC certified hp at 4000 rpm. In addition to its restyling, the Fisherman also incorporates the weed cutter feature and is designed to be used on larger prams, dinghies, canoes, rowboats, smaller utilities and sailboats. The Fisherman can troll extra-slow and produce speeds to 12 mph.

Equipped with a long shaft, this motor provides auxiliary power for sailboats.

The Lightwin produces 3 hp at 4000 rpm, certified by the OBC. The '57 Lightwin and its dead-grass green hunting partner, the Ducktwin are both equipped with weed cutters and slip clutch props. (The Ducktwin is the same motor as the Lightwin painted in camouflage colors for hunting purposes.)

These are the only motors in the line with integral tanks.

Evirude accessories include Simplex Remote Control with cables available for all motors except the Lightwin; Cruiser Fuel system kit: Adapted for use on the 18 and 35 hp motors when special tanks are installed in boat; Chromed pump kit for use in very sandy and silty water (available for all except the Lightwin); the Generator kit.

A Twin engine plate for starter, choke and ammeter accommodates the four push buttons necessary for twin engine installations; Clamp Screw Transom Plate which prevents motors from slipping off the transom and the clamp screw from sinking into the wood. A Steering handle kit (35 hp only), for all Big Twins from '35 through '57 models; Carrying Handle for 10 and 18 hp motors; and Cruise-A-Day Tanks which come in two sizes, six and four gallons for use with smaller motors.

The Golden Javelin by Johnson has all controls concealed behind a chrome shield. It will take a compact, efficient generator.

Bigger horsepower engines to power larger boats, a fast-charging generator and a slip clutch which puts an end to shear pin problems are among the new developments announced by Johnson Motors for the firm's 1957 Sea-Horse outboards.

The Waukegan, Ill., outboard manufacturing firm, has dropped its 1956 30 and 15 hp motors in favor of models of 35 and 18 hp.

The 35 is available in three versions—manual starting, electric starting and a deluxe, electric starting model called the Golden Javelin, which is finished in iridescent gold and white and trimmed with chrome. All other models are painted holiday bronze and white.

The 18, which replaces last year's 15, comes in both manual and electric starting. Rounding out the 1957 line of nine motors in six power sizes are engines of 10, 7½, 5½ and 3 hp.

The 35 is fast (up to 33 mph) with the stamina to maintain plating speed in multi-passenger family craft such as large runabouts and cruisers, and in water skiing.

The 18 is a versatile sport motor, easily portable for the fisherman, with the speed (27 miles an hour) for medium-sized runabouts and with the power to lift and pull light skiers, particularly in the youth group.

The 35 has a piston displacement of 40.5 cubic inches, an increase of nearly 5 cubic inches over the Sea-Horse 30. It carries a propeller of 13½-inch pitch, compared with 12½ inches in last year's 30. Piston displacement of the 18 is 22 inches, slightly more than two inches over last year's 15.

The propeller has been redesigned so that it is now a quarter-inch larger both in diameter and pitch resulting in better speed and power.

Johnson describes its "Power Master" generator as a compact, fast charging unit which will maintain operating current for a fully-electrified boat including motor equipment. All electric-starting 35 hp engines are pre-engineered for the generator which can be installed by the owner with small, common tools. It fits under the engine hood.

The slip clutch consists of a flexible hub core of compressed rubber, sealed in the propeller which flexes or "gives" when an obstruction is encountered. The propeller stops turning although the drive shaft and inner core of the hub continue to rotate. When freed, and by retracting the throttle and filling the lower unit clear of the obstruction, the propeller automatically resumes operation. The shear pin remains, but it functions solely as a "drive pin" to lock the propeller in place on the shaft.

The generator is equipped with an automatic charge regulator which prevents the battery from becoming over charged. The generator charges a 12-volt battery, standard size for all electric-starting 1957 models. It has a rating of 10 amperes continuous.

The new starter-and-choke button plate (with the firm's electric-starting motors) has a receptacle for inserting the generator ammeter. Only one generator and one battery are needed for twin-engine outboard installation.

Also new on all motors is an edged device to protect the propeller shaft from becoming entangled in fishlines.

Pulldown starting of the new 35 requires "less physical effort than usually is required for outboards of one-half as much horsepower," Johnson says, due to an automatic compression-relief system.

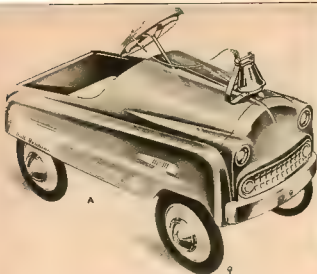

All outboards above three horsepower have full silencing equipment, including rubber-mounted cushion drive, and are engineered for snap-on attachment of remote controls.

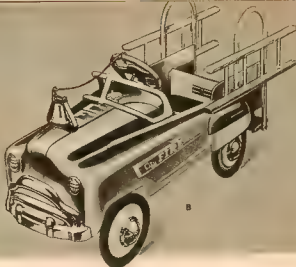

Fagel Products Co., Kent, O., makes this 4-cylinder in-line, 4-cv motor of 35 hp. It has new hood styling, improved performance and weighs 190 pounds.

New Johnson motor is the Sea-Horse 18 with slip clutch. It powers medium-sized runabouts and is offered in both manual and electric starting models.
